Discloses Plans For A Treaty

Proposed Peace Pact Would Permit Rearming By The Japanese

LOS ANGELES, March 31—(AP)— Ambassador John Foster Dulles disclosed tonight American plans for a series of Pacific pacts designed to let Japan rearm against Asian Communism and still guard against a revival of aggressive Japanese militarism.

In the center of a three-party system of agreements is a Japanese peace treaty which the United States is now negotiating with its Pacific allies.

Dulles described its key provisions officially for the first time. He called the proposed pact "a peace of reconciliation."

In an address prepared for delivery at Whittier college, he presented the pact as essentially a document of about half a dozen brief sections which would restore to Japan the power to run its own affairs. It would also recognize Japan's "inherent right" of self-defense.

The other major links in the series of treaties would be an agreement for the United States to maintain forces in and about Japan to help protect those islands from the Red menace of Asia, and a Pacific Security system designed to assure Australia and New Zealand that there will be, in the words of Dulles, "no unbridled rearmament which could become an offensive threat."

Given Assignment

President Truman has given Dulles the assignment of negotiating the Pacific peace settlement.

The ambassador chose tonight to describe in detail the treaty provisions which the United States circulated at Washington this week among Russian representatives and those of all other nations which were principally involved in the war against Japan.

The Russians have broken off discussions with the United States on the treaty. Dulles said their leaders "seem to have taken fright" at the prospect of actually getting a Japanese treaty instead of just talking about one.

He said he still hopes the Soviets will join in the treaty, but added that Russia "has no legal power to veto it."

General Provisions

Dulles did not quote the actual words of the treaty text, but he gave this sectional description:

Preamble—here Japan may express, if it wishes, its will to "apply for membership in the United Nations," to develop human rights among its own people, and "to conform to internationally accepted fair practices" in private trade and commerce.

Territory—Japanese sovereignty would be limited to the "four home islands and minor adjacent islands." Japan would renounce "all rights, titles and claims to Korea, Formosa, the Pecadores and the Antarctic area." Provision would be made also for United Nations trusteeship over the Ryukyu and Bonin islands with the United States administering them.

The decision to limit treaty action on Formosa to a renunciation by Japan of its rights is a new point. Previously the United States proposed elaborate steps by the big four powers including Russia, and by the United Nations, to settle the future of Formosa. The present proposal would leave Formosa's future up in the air.

The peace treaty would recognize the legality of Russia's possession of the Kurile islands and south Sakhalin only if Russia signed the treaty.

Security—the treaty would affirm that Japan would possess what the United Nations charter calls the "inherent right of sovereign nations in respect to individual and collective self defense."

Commercial—The treaty would provide that Japan would for three years after the treaty became effective agree to treat the allied powers as favorable as she treats any other nation. She would not, however, be required to extend more favorable treatment than is accorded her. Japan would also agree for the same period, pending conclusion of civil air transport agreements, to grant the allied powers civil air transport agreements as favorable as those prevailing at the outset of the treaty.

Property and claims—The allied powers would get the general right to "vest, retain and dispose of Japanese property within their territory, while Japan would return prewar allied property in Japan and validate prewar claims belonging to allied powers and their nationals."

Dulles said that in addition to these provisions some matters are still under discussion. Other parts of his speech indicated that these included preparations for which the Philippines have been pressing.

Dulles said while the United States thinks the whole idea of preparations impracticable, it is still discussing the subject "with an open mind."

'Gas' Pump Afire At Station

The Sedalia fire companies made their 180th run of 1951 Saturday afternoon to Hudson Oil Company's service station, 641 East Broadway, at 2:20 o'clock.

An automobile, driven by an employee of the service station, caught one of the gasoline pumps b. the bumper and jerked the pump from its base, setting fire to it.

Flames leaped high into the air and blistered the paint on a large sign which is 25 feet from the pump. The pump was badly damaged and over-all damages were estimated at $600, the pump being $400 of that amount.

James Hunter is manager of the station.

Death To Two Due Romance

WICHITA, Kas., March 31—(AP)—A father's disapproval of his 17-year-old daughter's romance with a college boy ended today in the deaths of the girl and her parent.

Coroner Sam Smith said that Eugene Philbrick, 55, prominent oil geologist, killed his daughter, Sara Jean, a high school senior, and then ended his own life a few hours before the girl was to wed Carl Hoffman, 22, Wichita.

Their bodies were found in the Philbrick home by police who answered a call, presumably made by Philbrick, for an ambulance to be sent to the address.

The girl had been shot twice in the chest and once in the head with a .22 caliber revolver. She was found on a bed where she apparently had been sitting, knitting. Philbrick's body was found on a pallet in his bedroom, a bullet in his head and a .22 caliber target pistol lying on his stomach.

Police said they learned that although Philbrick, widower for ten years, had disapproved of his daughter's romance with Hoffman, he gave his consent last night and the couple were to have married today. Officers said Miss Philbrick telephoned Hoffman at 1 a. m. and again at 8 a. m. today, that the call for the ambulance came at 8:15 a. m. and police found the bodies about 8:30 a. m.

Philbrick yesterday took his son, Charles, 20, to enter service at the Olathe, Kas., Naval Base. Police found a note signed by Philbrick directing that his son be placed in charge of his property under guardianship of the Rev. Sam West, Episcopalian rector.

District geologist for the Magnolia Petroleum Co., Philbrick was a past president of the Kansas Geologists' Society and district representative for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Two Escape Injury When Plane Crashes Into Fair Grounds

MADISON, Neb., March 31—(AP)—Two Kansas City, Kas., men en route to Norfolk, Neb., in a two-seater Pt-23 training plane escaped injury in a forced landing at the Madison county fairgrounds today.

Their plane overran the fairgrounds race track oval, plunged through a fence and nose into a ditch, the tail clipping telephone wires and disrupting long distance telephone service. One wing and one wheel of the plane were broken.

The flyers, Kelly and Wyatt Cover, brothers, said they were en route to Norfolk for a Civil Air Patrol search exercise tomorrow and became lost in a snow squall. Their plane is from the Blue Valley Flying Service of Kansas City.

About the same time Otto Vap of Kearney, Neb., made a forced landing in a field about seven miles from the Norfolk, Neb., airport. He was uninjured but his plane was mired in the mud.

City Election Be Held On Tuesday, 4th

4 Aldermen To Be Chosen And Two On School Board

Tuesday April 3, is the day for Sedalians to decide the issues presented them the past two weeks by the Democrats and Republicans over the four City Councilmen positions, and the issues presented for the two members of the Sedalia School Board of which three candidates are seeking the two places on the board.

Voting polls will be opened at 6:00 o'clock in the morning and remain open until 7:00 o'clock that evening. The fact the sun sets before 7:00 o'clock resulting in that closing hour.

The campaign from the time of the party conventions has turned into one of the most heated issues that has been experienced in city politics for several years. Leaders of both parties have been firing a barrage of political talks, advertisements, in an endeavor to "sell their candidates" to the voters of Sedalia.

A three-way campaign is on for the school board members. For many years the school board members, were elected at the party conventions of the Democrats and Republicans, one from each party to serve on the bipartisan board. This year a group of voters organized the Independent voters and filed a candidate for school board.

Two To Be Elected

Thus the Republicans are running Dr. G. H. Abney, to succeed himself; the Democrats have as their candidate Dr. Floyd L. Lively; the Independents E. R. Momberg. Only two of these men can be elected, those two who receive the highest number of votes. Therefore it is extremely important that the voters, this year, in filling out their ballots pay attention to the school board ballot and vote for only two.

In the past hardly fifty-percent of the voters paid attention to the school ballot, the rest tossing that ballot on the floor of the polling place.

The four councilmen candidates for the Democratic party are:

Pete Menefee, First Ward, running to succeed himself; John B. O'Brien, Second Ward; Emery L. Ellsworth, Third Ward, running to succeed himself; Maurice F. Hogan, Fourth Ward.

The Republican candidates are: Harry O. Berry, First Ward; Nathan L. Brown, Second Ward; T. J. McMillin, Third Ward; and Clyde Swafford, Fourth Ward.

Where To Vote

Voting polls for Tuesday are as follows:

1st Ward: 1st Precinct, Fire Station No. 2; 2nd Precinct, Mark Twain school; 3rd Precinct, Hubbard high school.

2nd Ward: 1st Precinct, Fire Station No. 1; 2nd Precinct, 313 East Jefferson; 3rd Precinct, Jefferson school.

3rd Ward: 1st Precinct, Washington school; 2nd Precinct, Whittier school; 3rd Precinct, 2118 East Broadway; 4th Precinct, Central Business college; 5th Precinct, 520 East 13th street.

4th Ward: 1st Precinct, Broadway school; 2nd Precinct, 612 West 16th street; 3rd Precinct, Archias' Floral company; 4th Precinct, Horace Mann school; 5th Precinct, Pettis County Court house.

NLRB Upholds Plant Closing

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—The National Labor Relations Board, in a split decision, today upheld a company which closed its plant until a union signed a contract after a series of strikes.

There were special circumstances in the case—involving the International Shoe Company and Local 198 of the CIO-Rubber Workers at Hannibal, Mo.—But the board ruled that any employer is justified in locking out his workers until he is sure more strikes won't be called that would make operations uneconomical.

In the Hannibal case, the company would not reopen its shoe plant until the union signed a contract. The strikes were not directed primarily at the company, which had virtually agreed to all terms of a new agreement. Instead the walkout, which crippled production of rubber heels and soles, were aimed at bringing all the workers into the union before the contract should be signed.

The proposed contract contained a maintenance of membership clause requiring all workers who were members of the union on the date of signing to remain in good standing for the duration of the agreement.

When walkouts were staged in a maneuver to get the workers into the local before signing, the company closed its doors. It insisted that the union include an escape clause in the agreement permitting workers to get out of the union if they had been forced into it in the months preceding the strike.

The plant was closed for a month before the union capitulated. The union charged the company with an unfair labor practice under the Taft-Hartley act.

The board voted 3 to 2 that:

"Here the parties were engaged in a contest over economic matters. Neither sought to undermine the other by unfair labor practices. The union, which choose to use an economic weapon within its control, can not rightly complain because the employer saw fit to follow suit."

The union and company have been under contract since 1942.

Guard In Raids On Taverns

DURANT, Miss., March 31—(AP)—The Mississippi National Guard today raided 20 Holmes County taverns in the first state crackdown on bootlegging and gambling in more than three years.

At least ten persons—possibly more—were arrested.

No estimate of the amount of whisky or gambling equipment could be made until the picked teams of armed guards arrived at the county courthouse in Lexington. Holmes county is 50 miles north of Jackson, the state capital.

The raids were staged simultaneously at 3:30 p. m. (CST) by groups of two to four guardsmen armed with pistols, carbines and sub-machine guns.

Sheriff Ellis Wynn requested Gov. Fielding Wright to assist him in the crackdown and Wright ordered the guard out.

College Boys To Get Draft Deferments

Order Would Apply To Hundreds Of Thousands In U. S.

By John B. Owen

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—President Truman in a sweeping order today provided draft deferments for hundreds of thousands of college boys.

His executive order authorizes draft boards to pass over students whose grades are good or who pass a special aptitude test to be given throughout the country.

Some 800,000 are expected to take the test this spring and summer in one of the most gigantic jobs in history.

Those now in college can take it starting May 26. But boys who haven't started college will not be given the examination until after they become freshmen.

Most high school seniors who intend to go to college are under 19, the present draft age. Therefore very few of them are expected to be drafted before they enter college and get a chance to take the aptitude test.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, told reporters there were some 1,000,000 non-veterans in college now. He could not estimate how many will be deferred under the new ruling. About 570,000 who came before draft boards were deferred for the present scholastic year.

Hershey said the scholastic standing necessary to permit exemption, and the necesary grade in the forthcoming aptitude test, will be determined later. However, some congressmen expect the outcome to be something like this:

Deferment of most freshmen who enter college next fall; sophomores who were in the upper half of their freshmen class scholastically; juniors who were in the upper two-thirds of their sophomore class, and seniors who were in the upper three-fourths as juniors.

There now is no test by Selective Service of a student's aptitude for college work.

Centers For Examinations

The newly-ordered test will be given at 1,000 examination centers throughout the United States and territories. The student must pay his own transportation costs to and from the testing center.

The examinations will be held first on May 26, and will be repeated on June 16 and 30 this year, for students who have started their college careers and plan to continue. This includes seniors and others planning to enter graduate or professional schools.

For high school seniors and others intending to go to college, tests will be given after they have commenced their first year of college.

La Prensa Editor Declines An Offer To Join US Paper

PHILADELPHIA, March 31—(AP)—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, editor and publisher of the government-suppressed Argentine newspaper, La Prensa, has declined an invitation to become guest editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"I am most appreciate for your kind cable and your friendly offer, Gainza Paz wrote to Walter H. Annenberg, editor and publisher of the Inqujrer. "Under present circumstances it is impossible for me to accept, but I will always remember your generous gesture."

Last week Annenberg invited Gainza Paz to accept the post for a three-month period, expressing his admirtation for the Argentinian's fight for a free press in the South American country.

Rebels Drop Into Combat

Parachute To Oppose Soviet-Backed Albania

By Alex Singleton

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 31—(AP)—Albanian refugees based in Italy are being parachuted into combat against the Soviet-backed Albanian government, Premier Marshal Tito's official newspaper said today. From abroad came reports, unconfirmed here, that Soviet Russia has sent both jet planes and fresh men to her isolated satellite.

Denouncing "Albanian feudalists and other hotheads" for actions it said might touch off the Balkan powder keg, Tito's newspaper, Borba, declared "armed groups are being parachuted into Albania and they are fighting there."

Yugoslav sources in London declared about a dozen MIG Russian jet fighters were sent into Albania early this month. A Paris diplomatic source who has a representative in Albania said two Soviet fighters have been patrolling daily for several days over Tirana, the capital.

Rome newspapers quoted refugees from Tirana as saying the Russians have boosted their controlling personnel in Albania—meaning military, naval, police and technical men—from 3,000 to 5'000.

Troubles Intensify

As much as they hate the pro-Cominform regime of Albania's Premier Enver Hoxha, Yugoslavs stressed that the growing troubles of their Adriatic neighbor might give Russia an excuse to launch an attack against the Moscow-hating Tito.

Albania is land locked by Yugoslavia and Greece.

But the Yugoslavs said the latest happenings in Albania are part of the general turmoil taking place in all Cominform countries, where the people are beginning to resist a policy of "complete dependence on the U.S.S.R."

Diplomatic sources elsewhere said there is little doubt that Albania, hungry under a dictatorship, is seething with unrest.

But American officials in Washington were skeptical that the unrest had or soon would reach the proportions of a general revolt. Moreover, the Albanians historically have been against whatever regime is in power.

The tough little Albanians, known as "Shiptars" or "sons of the eagle," are the last remnants of the vanished race of Illyrians that once occupied the Adriatic areas of Greece and Albania. They boast that none of many foreign invaders has ever succeeded in defeating them in the mountains.

This Woman Knew A Bargain

JOLIET, Ill., March 31—(AP)—An unidentified shopper today got a real bargain at a rummage sale at Joliet's Dunbar community center.

The shopper, a woman, paid 10 cents for a purse containing $60. The purse belonged to Mrs. Colina Stapleton of nearby Lockport.

Mrs. Stapleton told police she placed her purse near a table containing other purses which were for sale. A clerk said she had sold the purse to a woman customer for 10 cents.

Pre-Election Comments

Pre-election comments:

The following articles are printed in the time-order of their submission to the Democrat-Capital:

"Editor of Democrat:

"As president of the Independent Voters League, I think I should try to make clear to the people of Sedalia, just what the League is and what it is not. In the first place the League is not a political organization. The League is composed of Democrats, Republicans and other citizens who are not actively affiliated with either party. Perhaps it would have been better to give the League some other name like School Patrons League. For me Independent Voters League is interested primarily in the school and the election of School Board members.

"Up to this year everybody in Sedalia seemed to think that the city election and the School Election were the same, and they accepted the nomination of School Board member as proper. You would often hear complaints about the schools, but nobody thought that anything could be done about it except at the political conventions. And even if you were a delegate to a convention you couldn't say a word. The big boys did all the talking. The School Board evidently knew all the time that the system was wrong, because when Mr. E. R. Momberg tested it by filing for a place on the school ballot his name was put on though with much reluctance. To us it looks bad that the School Board should have put over such a deal for so many years.

"In general the Independant Voters League feel that the whole atmosphere of the schools should be uplifting and conducive to the highest ideals. We trust that the voters will agree with us and elect Mr. Momberg to the School Board on next Tuesday.

"Sincerely,
E. W. Schultz, president
1218 South Osage.

"Can a housewife bake pies for a church supper under the Mayor's proposed restaurant ordinance?" questioned William F. Brown at a meeting of the Second Ward Friday night at Jefferson School. "Will it regulate the School Lunch Program? Does it require the physical inspection of volunteer food handlers at church suppers, etc? These are some of the questions that caused the Council to take time to study the proposed restaurant ordinance

Yank Armor Crosses Parallel 38 To Scout Red-Held Defenses

Slow Down For Borrowing And Spending

Latest Moves In The Effort To Halt Inflation

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson tonight called on businessmen to halt unnecessary borrowing and spending and thereby deal a "major" blow to inflation.

Wilson urged a government campaign to whip up sentiment "throughout the business community."

The head man of the nation's vast defense buildup said he wants to get across the idea to corporate and business interests "that it is not in the public interest to either borrow or spend unnecessarily."

"An organized effort on their part to exercise restraint in borrowing and spending should be a major contribution to an anti-inflation program," he said in a letter to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

Writing as acting chairman of a committee to study the problem of private credit expansion, Wilson offered the idea as a supplement to the Federal Reserve Board's drive among lending institutions to discourage speculative and other non-productive loans.

Late Developments

Other developments in the fast shifting mobilization scene included:

1. A 30-day postponement of the National Production authority's ban on the use of aluminum in more than 200 civilian products. It was to have been clamped on tomorrow.

NPA also announced it is studying possible relaxation of prohibitions now in force on the use of copper. It gave no details.

The aluminum ban deferment—urged by the Senate small business committee—does not lift the limitation on the amount of aluminum fabricators may use. They will be held to 65 per cent of the amount they used on an average during the first six months of 1950. Also they must compete with defense-rated orders for supplies.

2. NPA authorized use of defense priority ratings for obtaining materials needed in making farm equipment during June.

3. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer indicated a decision will be made by Monday on rubber allocations for April. The Senate small business committee urged yesterday that a proposed cut be abandoned.

4. Industry officials said steel restrictions will force thousands of layoffs in some auto plants starting Monday.

5. NPA reserved 80 per cent of cotton duck in production for defense-rated orders starting tomorrow. The material goes into such military items as tents, tarpaulins, stretchers, cots.

6. NPA banned some use of nickel in the manufacture of heating and cooking appliances, refrigerators, sewing machines and about 70 other civilian products.

7. NPA cut the percentage of molybdenum going into some stainless steels and banned it in other stainless steels. The alloy is being used widely as a substitute for tungsten, most of which formerly came from Red China and Korea.

Wilson's letter to Sawyer urged extension of the Federal Reserve Board's credit restraint program. He also asked that the commerce department's business advistory committee try to supplement this program by counselling restraint among large borrowers.

Floods Become Wide-Spread; Nine Drown

By The Associated Press

Spring floods caused death and destruction in many parts of the United States as March made a lion-like exit.

At least nine persons perished—including Mary Louise Cordingley, 31, Iowa women's golf champion.

Thousands of persons were forced from their homes. Many climbed trees to escape the swirling waters.

Three non-fatal train accidents also were attributed to rain and floods.

Clad in an evening gown, Miss Cordingley was driving home from a dance at the Wakonda Country Club with Boyd Chambers, 25, son of the Des Moines mayor. Flood waters from the Raccoon river swept their car from the road. She went under the water. Chambers was rescued.

91-Year-Old Man A Victim

William B. Chant, a 91-year-old manufacturer, drowned when his automobile struck a culvert in Port Jervis, N. Y. and plunged him into surging water.

The rampaging Coosa—at a 30-foot level—swamped an automobile near Childersburg, Ala., and drowned its occupants, C. R. New, 28, and James E. Ford, 32, both of Talladega, Ala.

Their deaths raised to four the toll in the deep south, including two in Mississippi. Another man was missing and believed drowned.

A bank of Log creek in Apalachin, N. Y., weakened by rising waters, gave way and asphyxiated Thomas Walter Romeo, 14.

At least 1,200 persons were reported driven from their homes by high waters in Mississippi.

Scores Flee Alabama

Scores were forced to flee also in Alabama as the Coosa river reached one of its highest levels in more than a half century.

"We got people out of trees and off rooftops and got them places to eat and sleep," said National Guard Capt. George H. Limbaugh.

Almost 800 families were forced from their homes in northern New Jersey before flood waters began to subside.

The Newark weather bureau reported 2.8 inches of rain in two days, compared with an average of 3.7 inches a month for this time of year.

A rain-damaged roadbed derailed a five-car Rutland railroad train at Cemetery Crossing at Arlington, Vt., and shook up about 40 passengers. None of the cars overturned. The train was bound from Troy, N. Y., to Montreal.

Just north of New York City, the heavily travelled Sawmill river parkway and the Bronx river parkway were flooded and traffic was detoured.

Des Moines Phones Out

The swollen Racoon river which cost the woman golfer's life ripped out a cable south of Des Moines and left about 1,000 telephones out of order.

The Raccoon and Des Moines rivers join at Des Moines and were expected to crest about three feet below the 1947 flood high of 21 feet.

Downstream at Ottumwa where nine lives were lost in the 1947 flood some families were evacuated from low areas. The western Iowa village of Turin was isolated by flood waters.

Several thousand acres of western Iowa winter wheat were damaged.

Light snow fell from Minnesota to Michigan.

Tanks Return To UN Lines After Check

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO, Sunday, April 1—(AP)—Two American tank columns prowled across parallel 38 a half-mile into North Korea Saturday with guns blazing.

Seeking to determine the aims of a threatening Chinese Red buildup, the American tanks tested Communist positions for three and one-half hours, then made shooting withdrawals to their own lines on the west and central fronts.

The Chinese knocked out one tank with a land mine and splattered mortars, potato-masher hand grenades and machinegun fire at the others.

Associated Press correspondent John Randolph, who accompanied the tankers, said the crossing of the parallel was not a general advance. It was part of the U. S. Eighth Army's limited offensive against Reds still fighting south of the old political boundary between the Communist North and Republican South.

By coincidence the tank forays came three months to the day after the Chinese opened their big push New Year's eve into South Korea.

Elsewhere, fierce but localized firefights took place Saturday on the central front, north, east and west of allied-held Chunchon.

South Koreans Cross River

South Korean troops on the western front splashed across the Imjin river north of Munsan and engaged an enemy company during the day. In announcing the crossing, the Eighth Army made no mention of a retirement. Presumably Republican forces remained on the north bank of the river.

The Chinese, who are reported preparing a massive spring drive with 300,000 man just north of the parallel, continued heavy supply and troop movements by night.

Allied pilots reported a total of 5,900 Communist vehicles were seen moving to and from the battlezone on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Of 1,800 vehicles spotted Friday night Fifth Air Force pilots claimed about 100 destroyed.

AP correspondent William C. Barnard, on the critical central front, reported the Reds fell back from salients east and west of Chunchon. He said that this, coupled with a notable increase of Communist movements behind the front, indicated the Reds were relieving units now on the line or withdrawing closer to the paralel.

Chunchon, only eight miles south of the parallel and 45 miles north-east of Seoul, is regarded as either an allied drive north or a logical jumping-off point for Chinese drive south. The Reds are within one mile of Chunchon at one point in well-prepared ridge positions.

Priority For Farm Needs

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—The government authorized approximately 1,600 manufacturers to use defense priority ratings to obtain materials needed in making farm equipment during June.

Announcing this decision, the National Production Authority said the manufacturers may apply defense priorities to orders for as much materials and components as they required during an average month in the first half of last year.

This assistance to producers of farm equipment closely follows the demotion of two Agriculture department officials criticized recently by a House committee and farm groups for alleged failure to present farmers' needs forcefully to the Defense Production Administration.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan yesterday reassigned Ralph S. Trigg, who had been head of the Production and Marketing administration and the Commodity Credit Corporation, and Frank R. Woolley, deputy administrator of PMA. Brannan named both officials to be his special assistant for CCC affairs with lesser authority hereafter.

NPA made no reference to Brannan's action in its announcement of the farm machinery program.

"It's Fun To Give Blood"

Now, that's a true statement, if we ever made one. Remember the Blood Bank during the late war? Over at the Elks club? The nurses, all of whom were pretty . . . the lines of people, many of them your friends, many of them strangers who became friends . . . You were stretched out on a cot, and you got into conversation with the blood donor on the next cot . . . You got a tiny prick in the arm, then you flexed your hand, the rhythm made itself: one, two, three, four, five . . . You counted and pushed your head around so that you could make sure it was a full pint . . . then it was over, and somehow or other you felt wonderful . . . . into the next room, and all those cookies and sandwiches, and gallons of good, rich milk, gallons of fragrant coffee . . . Gray Ladies and the Canteen girls bringing you more and more of everything . . . You kept on feeling wonderful . . . . You started looking forward to the time when the Unit would come back. Yes, it was fun to give blood. It's going to be fun this time too. It isn't time to register yet. But it is time to think about it. In a few weeks now, the Mobile Unit will be here in Sedalia. The lines will form again. We want to see all the old guard back again, and a new guard (the ones who have grown up in the interim). Last time, Sedalia and the county broke the national record. We want to do it again.

One Pilot Dies As Planes Hit

ALTUS, Okla., March 31—(AP)—Two small planes dusting a wheat field southeast of here collided in midair Friday, sending one craft crashing out of control and killing its war-veteran pilot.

David O. Reid, Jr., 36, of Altus, perished in the flaming wreckage of his plane which crashed in a field and exploded.

Everett Clark, 37, of Erick, Okla., managed to land his damaged craft a half-mile away and escaped injury.

Both pilots were employed by the Leland Scott Dusting Service of Mangum, Okla., and were completing a job of spraying a wheat field eight miles south and a half-mile east of Altus.

Witnesses said Reid's plane grazed the side of Clark's craft, the right wing clipping the motor. Reid's ship went out of control and smashed into the field, bursting into flames.

The landing gear on Clark's plane was knocked away but he managed to land safely and stepped out unhurt.

Reid was a World War two glider pilot who saw overseas service. He had been employed by the dusting service for the last five years. He was the son of Donald O. Reid Sr., retired Altus postal carrier who lost another pilot son in Europe during the war. A wife and two small sons survive.

Costello Is Indicted By U. S. Senate

Gambler Among 12 Charged By Group In Contempt Count

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—The Senate topped off the sensational packed hearings of its crime committee Friday by voting contempt citations against 12 balky witnesses headed by Frank Costello, reputed New York gambling kingpin.

At the same time Senator Wiley (R-Wis) announced he and Senator Tobey (R-NH) will introduce a resolution within a week to extend the life of the committee until next January 15.

The committee's authority originally was scheduled to expire tomorrow night but the Senate, acceding to popular demand, voted late yesterday for a month's extension.

'Greasy Thumb' Wanted

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) crime committee chairman, asked the Senate to cite Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, reputed former treasurer for the Chicago Al Capone gang. The Senate voted unanimously for that and then Kefauver sent over the other 11 names, including Costello.

This list, besides Costello, included Frank Erickson, big time New York bookmaker who is serving a two year jail sentence for gambling; Joe Adonis, New York and New Jersey gambler described as a Costello lieutenant, Morris Kleinman, said to have once been the king of Cleveland bootleggers; and Louis Rothkopf, another alleged former Cleveland bootlegger.

Then there was William G. O'Brien, Florida gambler; John Doyle of Gary, Ind., questioned about gambling and slot machines. Ralph J. O'Hara, Chicago race wire figure; George S. Bowers, Florida gambler; John Croft, linked with Kentucky gambling and Stanley Cohen, identified by the committee as a San Francisco race wire figure.

Penalty A Year in Jail—$1,000

Conviction of contempt carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine on each count.

Costello was cited for a refusal to tell the committee how much he was worth, financially, and to give other information.

Most of the others declined to give information on the grounds it might tend to incriminate them or they refused to appear before television cameras set up in the hearings.

SECRET CAUCUSES OR OPEN COUNCIL MEETINGS

The City of Sedalia is not a private corporation, but a public corporation, and the members who represent the city in city offices are public servants. If a private corporation wishes to conduct its affairs behind locked doors, that is one matter, but it is, and always has been, my supported contention that the people have every right to know and be a part of the deliberations which effect them financially and judiciously. THAT IS THE REASON WHY SECRET CAUCUS MEETINGS WERE DISPENSED WITH WHEN I TOOK OFFICE LAST YEAR.

It has been said that the mayor has refused to sit down with the city council members to discuss city affairs. This is an untruth, and will be upheld by the record for I have set down with the members of the council twice each month since I took office and in open council meeting.

My office is open each day and I will be glad to discuss with council members, or any citizen, affairs which effect our city, or our citizens.

Mayor Herb Studer

HERE IS THE ONE-YEAR RECORD OF THE CITY COUNCIL

We ask the Sedalia taxpayers if this is a record of which the members of the council may be proud.

1. Passed the Electrical Ordinance depriving home owners from doing own electrical work by a vote 7 to 0. Vetoed by mayor who explained the ordinance to the public and by public reaction the veto stuck.

2. Let contract for new construction work on Fire Station No. 2 by a 7 to 0 vote without first obtaining specifications for the work. The mayor protested that this was not good business procedure, but the passage was voted.

3 Raised salaries of favored city employees of the machine excessively at the expense of the taxpayers, by a vote of 7 to 0 and over the mayor's protest.

4. Tabled the Restaurant Ordinance, after the district health supervisor had shown that Sedalia's restaurants graded only 47.6% according to U. S. Health Standard Grading Regulation, and a minimum grade of 80% is asked. Some restaurant owners in Sedalia maintain high standards for their business and welcome such standardization for all restaurants for the protection of the eating public.

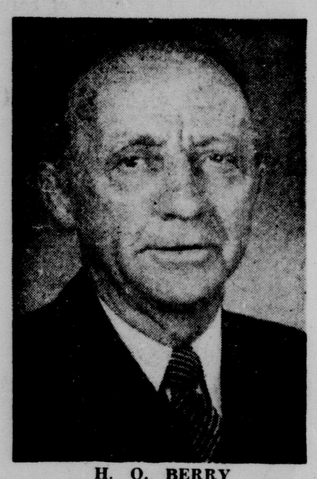

5 Turned down such public-spirited men—both Democrats and Republicans—as Guy Bailey, Claude Boul, Glen Lewis, Dr. Marvin L Crutcher, Jr., Jack Alpert, M. L. Edwards, Frank Hannigan, Paul Bertheaux, Frank Mehl and Robert Mitchell for non-paying appointments on board and committees where the only remuneration is the satisfaction that the member is doing his civic duty toward the progress of the community.

There are more glaring examples in this one year record of the City Council, but we believe these five will show the type of cooperation the present council members are capable of giving.

For City Government That Represents YOU
Vote For These Republican Candidates Tuesday

H. O. BERRY
Republican Candidate for
Alderman First Ward

For long years a resident, home-owner and taxpayer of the city of Sedalia, Mr. Berry has engaged in numerous civic enterprises and at present has the highly responsible job of Civil Defense director for Sedalia, a job that requires organizational, and administrative ability.

Mr. Berry served his country in World War I and in World War II; and, during the latter part of his military career in the last war, he filled assignments in the Army which gave him excellent training in the principles and application of administrative work.

He has served the City of Sedalia as a Police Judge for two years, and as he says, "I stand on my record. No man can say that I did not try at all times to be just and fair to all alike." While Police Judge, Mr. Berry naturally became well acquianted with the administration of this municipality and its problems. This gives him a superior, well-informed background on which to base his future work as a city councilman.

At all times, when busy with civic responsibilities, Mr. Berry has endeavored to use good judgement, sound planning and has the ultimate welfare of Sedalia and its citizens close to his heart. He has ever been ready to expend time and energy in the furtherance of a progressive, forward-looking city government.

NATHAN L. BROWN

Nathan Brown is an active, young man, who wishes to devote time and energy to the responsibilities of citizenship, and to work for a fair, balanced, harmonious city government. He was born and reared in Sedalia and still lives in the same house where he was born, in the Second Ward.

He is married and the father of two children. "Brownie" as his friends call him, served his country during World War II having been assigned overseas for 33 months with a combat outfit. He saw action in North Africa, Sicily and Italy and returned with a heightened awareness that it was a duty of veterans to take an active part in the service of their country during peacetime as well as war.

"Brownie" is a successful business man, owner and operator of his restaurant at the Broadway intersection of Highways 50 and 65. As a business man he is vitally concerned with the growth and development of Sedalia in future years, and he will devote his time and abilities to the furtherance of a progressive, expanding community where the general good for the most people will be the aim of good city government.

T. J. McMILLIN
Republican Candidate for
Alderman Third Ward

T. J. "Big Mac" McMillin, from the Third Ward is the Republican candidate for city councilman representing the largest ward area in Sedalia. "Mac", as he is called by his friends, works in the Missouri Pacific shops, where he is known for his sound judgement and fair dealing in all his relations with the shopmen's committees, on which he has served in an official capacity.

"Mac" is a home-owner and tax-payer and has lived in Sedalia and worked with residents of Third Ward who also are employees of the Missouri Pacific shops. He is interested in securing better streets for his district, especially in the areas where there has been much new building.

He believes in "sound government for the benefit of all the people of Sedalia," and he would like to see the municipal administrators work together so that all people who live in this community will have a better and more forward-looking city, brought about through harmonious and and co-operative planning and achievement.

CLYDE SWAFFORD
Republican Candidate for
Alderman Fourth Ward

Clyde Swafford, is an enterprising, successful, hard-working business man, owner and operator of the Standard Service Station, at 4th and Osage streets. Clyde Swafford is married and is a local taxpayer.

He believes that there should be definite, progressive, city planning on a community-wide basis, and he will bring to the office of councilman, his experience as an alert, efficient business man. The Republican city committee is glad to endorse as their candidate for councilman from the Fourth Ward a young man who is civic-minded and who will devote the time and energy necessary to help carry on the multiple problems incident to a city the size of Sedalia.

In all his dealings with his fellowmen, Clyde is noted for his honesty, integrity and his firm stand taken on those ideas which he thinks are right. He will work at all times for better playgrounds for children, more parks for the recreational needs of the community and to give the people of Sedalia the best service possible.

These Candidates Pledge To The Citizens of Sedalia a Progressive and Forward-Looking City Government and a Business Administration of Its Affairs. They Merit Your Support, Vote and Influence in The City Election Tuesday, April 3rd.

Republican City Committee.

My Program? It Has Been Unfolding For The Past Year!
HERE IS THE RECORD

DURING THE FIRST YEAR OF MY ADMINISTRATION—

- More street lights have been installed than were put into operation in any one previous year.
- Eight miles of city streets were sealcoated in 1950, and the present program calls for an expenditure of $20,000 for sealcoating this year. In past years no more than $13,000 was allotted for this work which is being done at no additional cost to the taxpayer.
- Lights have been installed at the 16th and Center city park.
- A new, lower light rental has been worked out with Missouri Public Service for Liberty Ball Park to make it economically possible for more people to use night facilities of the park.
- A much needed street sweeper has been bought and paid for.
- A new truck for city parks maintainance has been purchased and paid for.
- A new truck for maintaining and operating city disposal plants has been purchased and paid for.
- A $10,000 Caterpillar tractor for city disposal grounds has been purchased under contract.
- The City parking lot on E. 4th St. became a reality and has been purchased and developed.
- Negotations started and option taken for another public park for southwest Sedalia citizens. Development is expected to start soon.
- The entire program for operation of new disposal plants was set up and is in operation.
- The city participated in a summer recreational program for Sedalia's youth to keep them healthfully occupied and off the streets.
- The pay of city firemen who work 12 hours daily equalized with comparable city jobs of only 8 hours daily.
- The Negro hospital was taken out of politics and given back to citizens to operate. Now best serving citizens of that district.
- The Park Board has been set up on a non-partisan basis for more efficient operation.
- A citizens committee was appointed and sold Sedalia Airport grounds west of Sedalia at a profit to the city.
- We are currently advertising for bids for development of new Sedalia Airport east of Sedalia.
- The city developed the grounds of Sedalia's two new swimming pools and had the initial cost of first year's operation.
- Two new police cars for patroling city residential and business district purchased and paid for, where only one car had been purchased in any one year previously.
- New uniforms for city policemen costing $1,500.00 purchased and paid for.
- New hose for both fire departments purchased and paid for.
- Plans made and installation soon of 30 new barbecue pits in Sedalia parks so more people may enjoy park facilities.
- The city garbage collection has been maintained and improved.
- A new roof for Convention Hall costing $2,000.00 put on and paid for.

As the record will show there are many more accomplishments of this one year city administration. As shown here emphasis has been placed on the development and maintainance of the city's physical properties, and probably more has been done in this direction than in any previous single year in recent history.

The city today is in the soundest financial position it has been for years, notwithstanding, that during the first month or two of my administration, I was considerably alarmed at the depleted general operational account, and it was a tight squeeze to meet current expenses and salaries at the outset, because the preceeding administration in one last flurry to spend all city operational money before I took office, left less than $2,000.00 in the general operational fund.

Fellow citizens, this is part of my program and the record of it. I believe you will agree that these things constitute a sound administration of city affairs.

Herb Studer,
Mayor,
City of Sedalia.

Business In Family Here Seventy Years

April 1, 1882-April 1, 1951—69 years have elapsed and the advent of today marks the threshold of the 70th year the Acme Printing and Stationery company will have been operated by the Botz family. On that momentous day in 1882 Charles J. Botz purchased half interest in the Sedalia Journal Co., a firm that published a weekly newspaper and operated a small job printing department. Chas. O. Botz

Although this firm has been under the management of this one family these many years, May 27, 1877 was its founding. On that day this year this institution enters its 75th year.

The Acme Printing & Stationery company is a Missouri corporation and since under the Missouri law it is compulsory to have three or more individuals constitute a Missouri corporation, plans are being formulated to include additional members to form the reorganized corporation which will conduct the business in the future.

No changes in personnel are anticipated and all the assets and liabilities including accounts receivable and payable will be retained in the structure of this organization.

Pre-Election Comments

"The language of this proposal covers so many activities, and the regulations provided so harsh, that to be effective and fair only a highly trained technician could hope to administer it. In its present form the ordinance calls for its enforcement by the sanitary officer of the city who at the moment is a man who has had no technical training. The Council demanded that for the best interests of our citizens that all interested parties be informed of this ordinance and permitted a hearing before final action," Mr. Brown stated.

"Mr. Mayor, I submit, and proof is available at the City Hall in the recorded ordinances that the present Council did not vote upon, and you did not veto the section of the electrical ordinance upon which you have dwelt at such length in the press and on the radio," Brown declared.

Emery Ellsworth was presented by the meeting chairman Dewey Guinn and spoke briefly in behalf of the Second Ward candidate John O'Brien, mentioning his known devotion to his city and its betterment and of his war record.

John O'Brien was introduced and pledged to the voters that if elected he would judge each issue on its own merits and do his best to vote in a fair and unbiased attitude on each issue.

The Eagle Minstrels presented a program of song and dance which was well received by an overflowing audience.

"Editor Democrat:

"I read with care the statement of the school board in Thursday's issue of the Democrat in regard to their school building program. And I was amazed to learn that 'they did what they thought was best for the greatest number.' It has always been my understanding that bond issue money can be used only for the purpose for which it is voted and for no other purpose.

"I presumed that the board had had legal advice in the matter but to satisfy my own mind I made an investigation as to whether the board could change plans after the bonds had been voted. I found that at Salem, Missouri bonds had been voted to build a high school. The board wanted to spend some of the bond issue money to purchase a site for the building but the court ruled that the money could be used only for the erection of the building and not to purchase the site.

"This court decision raises an important question for Sedalia. According to the school board's statement one of the proposed projects was for a 'new elementary building to replace Broadway and Horace Mann' and 'an auditorium gymnasium' for Jefferson school. For these projects $375,000 was voted. The board abandoned the new elementary building because 'the patrons of Horace Mann were not too enthusiastic about the one school' and 'the city seemed to be growing rapidly in the southwest'.

"The sixty-four dollar question is, did the foregoing reason give the board legal authority to abandon the project and spend the money elsewhere? Also the board's explanation that there is no money available at present to erect an auditorium gymnasium at Jefferson, raises the question. 'Where is the money that was voted for that purpose?' The statement of the school board about the school building program appears to be wholly unsatisfactory and needs further elucidation as to the board's legal authority to spend bond issue money as they think best, rather than for the purpose for which the people voted."

"Irvin Raut."

The workers of the Independent Voters league met Friday night at the court house to make final plans for the school election Tuesday. E. W. Schultz the president presided. There were reports from various areas of the city concerning.

Interest in the candidacy of E. R. Momberg, the Independent candidate Attention was called to the display advertisement in the Democrat as the "City Official Ticket" giving the names of all the political candidates but omitting the name of Mr. Momberg as candidate for the school board. Mr. Schultz stated that since the Independent Voters league is not political and the school election is non-partisan Mr. Momberg's name should not have been omitted.

However Mr. Momberg's name will appear on the school ballot. A display advertisement in the Democrat was authorized giving the names of all three candidates that will appear on the school ballot with instructions how to vote. It was pointed out that the ballot will read that there are two to be elected and to vote for two it will be necessary to scratch the name of the one for whom the voter does not wish to vote which is awkward and may lead to confusion.

L. E. Sheridan gave a talk in which he cited his experience in school affairs. He congratulated the Independent Voters League for making it possible for the voters of the Sedalia school district to have a voice in the selection of school board members.

Turn Heat On Underworld

Expose By Crime Committee Has Astonished Nation

(By The Associated Press)

An aroused citizenry is turning the heat on the nation's underworld. And the mobsters are starting to sizzle.

This is one of the clearest aftermaths of the Senate Crime Committee's recent spotlighting of criminals.

It is not just a matter of "Cheese it, the cops."

The people themselves are showing signs of a vigilante spirit. From California to New England, citizens are forming—or rejuvenating—organizations to combat organized crime that corrupts civil life.

Will the enthusiasm last? Some promise that it will, such as Spruille Braden, former ambassador to Argentina, and now head of the recently-formed New York City Anti-Crime committee.

These modern-day posses aim to test their mettle against the suave but tough mobsters, not with old-time six-shooters, but by exposing corruption and by prodding prosecutors and police.

The power of the opinion they represent is already revealing its force.

Prosecution agencies are showing a new alacrity in bagging suspects.

Crack Downs Follow

From coast to coast in the past few days has come story after story of indictments or charges being placed against mysterious figures long immune to prosecution.

They were accompanied by news of crackdowns on suspected gambling places and illegal race wires.

Some of the figures wanted for questioning took to their heels. Some were located—one in a Florida Keys fishing shack. Some are still hunted.

"We've got the criminals on the run," said Daniel Sullivan, operating director of the Miami, Fla., crime commission.

In San Francisco, Stanley Cohen, who supplied bookies with race information, voluntarily retired from business.

"It's too hot," he said.

The arousing of public interest against local crime was one of the chief objectives of the Senate Crime Committee.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) the chairman, has said the principal aim was to study organized crime methods as a basis for corrective federal legislation. But he holds that the federal government cannot do the whole job.

Are Taking Action

"The spotlighting of local crime is an important by-product," he said. "Many citizens did not appreciate the sinister influences in their communities. Now that they know the facts they are doing something about it."

The function of the citizen watchdogs is to hit crime on the local level as advocated by the Senate Crime Committee and dramatically exponded by Braden when he appeared before the committee in New York.

Braden said the effectiveness and zeal of the committee he heads "will outmatch the crooks and conniving law enforcement officers."

"We are in this fight to a finish," he declared.

Sen. Kefauver said he received "more inspiration" out of Braden's statement than anything "in a long, long time."

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, asked for a copy of Braden's statement. He termed it one of "the most brilliant and incisive" he had heard on crime and the responsibility of citizens in meeting the problem.

Braden stressed that his watchdogs comprise leaders in industry, labor, social organizations, banking and other callings, drawn from varying creeds, colors and racial origins.

Braden's committee is but one of many being born or re-born.

'Intellectual Prank' From Bernard Shaw

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (AP) — People laughed at George Bernard Shaw when he was alive. They are chuckling at him again now that he is dead.

They think it quite a joke that the odd old Irish playwright should leave the residue of his millionaire estate to prove that the English language would be better off with a 40-letter alphabet than a 26-letter alphabet.

"Boy, oh boy," says the average man, "I could sure think of something better than that to do with my money."

And he dismisses the whole project as just another intellectual prank on the part of Bernard Shaw, whose oddities included wearing a beard, vegetarianism—and living to be 94 years old.

It is perhaps Shaw's own fault, for as he said himself:

"It's by jingling the bell of a jester's cap that I . . . have made people listen to me."

The trouble is that the people laughed at his bells but never heard the serious message behind the bells. And there was usually a serious message. For Shaw wasn't merely a wry humorist and gifted dramatist. He was a tremendous moralist, who tried to preach by raising laughter at things that pretend to be true and are really untrue.

Like all great moralists he hated waste. He hated waste in any form—waste of life, time, energy or money. He may have been wrong in some of his views, but they worked out well for him. He wrote more than 50 plays, earned and saved more than a million dollars, and lived almost 30 years beyond the present average span of civilized man. Until shortly before his death at 94 he was still active, healthy, busy and cheerful.

Master of Language

For almost three quarters of a century he was a master in the use of the English language. He loved it dearly. With its words he built some wonderful edifices that will stand longer than Buckingham Palace or the Tower of London.

But that language was a tool to him just as a wrench is to a mechanic. And just as a good mechanic sometimes can see ways to improve his tools so Shaw saw ways to improve the English language.

The thing he hated most about it was the fact it is wasteful. He wanted to simplify it. So he left a fortune to have a survey made to show just how unnecessarily costly it is to retain a 26-letter alphabet instead of replacing it with a 40-letter alphabet.

An alphabet is just a collection of the signs for certain sounds in a language. The English language has only 26 letters but—Shaw says— it has 40 different sounds. So it now has to use several letters to stand for the extra sounds. And sometimes it uses the same letters to stand for separate sounds, a practice that foreigners trying to learn our language find particularly maddening.

An example of the latter is the ending "-ough." It is pronounced differently in such words as rough, bough, and though.

By creating an alphabet of 40 letters, each standing for the 40 separate sounds in English, the language would be unbelievably simplified. Words would be shortened. Time would be saved. Isn't it quicker to write "ruf" than "rough?"

Multiply that saving millions of times on thousands of other words, Shaw believed, and the world would save tremendously in time, paper, ink and money. And he was a fine economist.

It may be a long time before the English people ever adopt his system, or the time-and-effort-saving systems of other men who have tried to improve the language. But it will be simplified in time. It is going on haphazardly even now.

Everyone has some little personal way of making it easier to use. A stenographer, for example, may type out "thought" and "night." But when she snatches a moment to scribble a note to her boy friend she writes, "Thot you're going to call me last nite."

Shaw felt the employer ought to have the benefit of the stenographer's wisdom. It is really only snobbery that keeps the language as inefficient as it is.

Title Role To Miss Ellsworth

Frank F. Evans, director of "My Sister Eileen," which will be the final Playhouse presentation on May 1-2, has announced casting of the leading roles in the play. The coveted title role of "Eileen" will be played by Miss Bettye Ellsworth, whose excellent acting has won her leads as well as supporting parts in many of the club's productions. spotlight in the three-act comedy, Her sister "Ruth," who shares the will be played by Mrs. Ben F. Klein, whose talents as a comedienne were first seen in the club's first play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

William D. Wilson, Jr., a newcomer to Playhouse casts, will portray the part of "The Wreck," a professional football player who gave up the wrestling racket because he had to rehearse so much. Mr. Wilson's acting experience includes a number of parts in college plays at Murray State Teachers College, Murray, Kentucky.

Robert Baker, a magazine editor who finally succeeds in helping Ruth get a foothold in the writing profession, will be played by Harold Barrick. John Erickson, who had an important role in "The Male Animal" will play the part of the timid drug store clerk who falls heavily for Eileen, "Frank Lippencott." One of the funniest characterizations in the play, that of the bullying East-side type landlord, "Mr. Appopolous," will be entrusted to Lawrence M. Riley.

A few minor male roles remain uncast, according to Mr. Evans and his assistant director, Mrs. C. W. Stephenson. Anyone interested in playing one of these parts is requested to attend the rehearsal to be held Monday night at 7:30 at the V. F. W. Hall, 110 East Third street.

They are a harmless race, by and large. I keep a bunch of old shoe laces handy for them myself. Whenever one comes by I just silently hand him a shoe lace and he goes away whistling. He has had a happy day.

Borrowing As National Pastime

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—Baseball is no longer the national pastime. Borrowing is.

Take the average business office, for example. Aren't there at least twice as many eager borrowers as there are eager baseball fans? Actually, borrowing is today perhaps America's biggest indoor industry.

Some people still frown on borrowing as if it were something immoral or showed a lack of forethought and character. However, that is an old-fashioned view and is dying out.

The reason is simple. Roughly half the people in the nation now borrow from the other half one week — and the next week the second half borrows from the first half. So that doesn't leave anyone who can point the finger of scorn. Who wants to be an ant anyway in a neighborhood of grasshoppers?

And there is certainly one nice thing about being a borrower. You associate with a better class of people — people with money. Borrowing also develops in a man the power of imagination, the art of narration and the ability to act.

Now more stirring than Barrymore in hamlet is the tale of woe given by a horseplayer trying to borrow five bucks to bet on a "sure thing" race. He epitomizes the hopeless struggle of all brave men to win in a forlorn world ruled by change. And I, for one, can rarely say him nay. It is all I can do to keep from breaking into applause.

Over the years I have made quite a study of office borrowers because I love to hear all their odd adventures. Why wear out your eyes reading a magazine story at home when you can sit at your own desk in the office and hear a real life story — on the boss's time.

Some of Pleas Made

The borrowers seem to fall into certain pigeonholes:

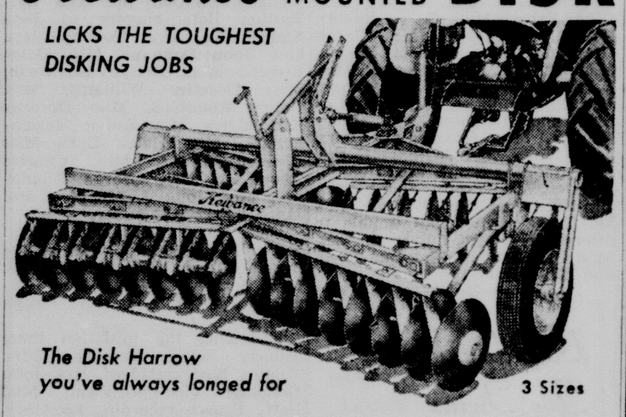

1. The wet-eyed or emergency borrower. This is the type that is in deep trouble. "Our family cat just has to have an operation," he says, "and the veterinarian refuses to lift a scalpel unless I plunk down $25. Please, please, help me save our dear old tabby. If she ever has kittens, I promise to name one after you."

2. The gee-but-you're-lucky-to-have-the-chance-to-do-me-a-favor borrower. And if you lend this gent enough to buy his children a television set, he also thinks you ought to buy them glasses so they won't hurt their eyes. He is back right away with a suggestion that you finance his new car and help send his mother-in-law away on a good long vacation. When it comes to paying you back, he has a memory like a herd of elephants — all stricken with amnesia.

3. The Robin Hood borrower. This type has a heart too big for one chest and he goes around borrowing for other people. "Old Joe Doakes hit me up for $200 to buy some store teeth but I'm strapped myself," he says. "Lend me the $200 and I'll give it to

Your Wardrobe

By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

CHECK YOUR SUIT WARDROBE now—do you have the necessary number of suits for your busy life? If not, it is an excellent time to replenish your wardrobe. Most of the shops now have reduced their spring suits and you can have an extra one, or that very good suit you have always felt was more money than you cared to spend. Suits are the very backbone of your wardrobe and you will have need of them well up into the summer months. If you are a career woman or busy with organization work, an extra suit hanging in your closet will be a welcome sight to start out with next fall.

This is the time of year when the mail man delivers those colorful seed catalogs; and we wish we could grow roses that have a semblence of those pictured; also those glossy green beans (no strings attached).

If you can't grow all those things pictured over night — try using those bright roses on small tin trays that need some color. If the tray needs painting first; black enamel makes a good background for the rose or vegetable cut-outs. After the enamel is dry, glue the cut-outs to the tray and give it a coat of clear lacquer to protect the color. A new appearing canister set can be made in the same manner.

Slocum Calls Blues Drill

Teen-Agers Meet At Housel Park; Too Wet For Rest

Weather conditions the past week have been anything but baseball weather in Sedalia, but it isn't stopping the Junior Blues from calling for practice at 1:00 o'clock this afternoon at Housel Park. The Sedalia Chiefs, Ban Johnson team, is unable to practice because of the diamonds at Liberty Park and Sixteenth street being too wet.

Smith-Cotton high school Tigers worked in two nights of practice under the direction of Coach Jim Ball. Prospects for the Tiger team this season appear to be good from reports, and the team will be ready for action as soon as the season is opened.

Blues Welcome All

Jack Slocum, manager of the Teen-Age Blues in announcing practice for today said it made no difference where a boy lives he is welcome to try out for the team and if good enough will be suited up. The age limit on this team is 13 years to 18. "I'll give them a chance to earn a berth on the squad," Slocum said.

The Blues were organized several years ago and 1950 saw the team coming through with its best season, which they hope to duplicate at the least. No line was drawn on teams they played or will play. Slocum desires to get games with Junior Legion teams as well as some semi-pro clubs.

The first game of the season for the Blues will be on Sunday, April 29 at Housel Park, their opponents to be announced later.

Chiefs Won't Practice

Manager Joe Imhauser, checked the baseball diamonds Saturday, and reported it would be impossible to hold practice due to the wet and heavy baseball diamond at Liberty Park and on Sixteenth street. Imhauser stated several players have already contacted him and plan on trying out with the Chiefs.

Junior Legion players will hold a meeting at the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion hall on East Fifth street this afternoon. All players interested in playing with the Legion are requested to attend this meeting.

BRILLIANT CAST—A leg encased in a cast almost to the hip, result of a skiing accident, didn't stop Joan Castle Joseff, noted Hollywood jeweler, from attending the Motion Picture Academy awards. Her cast shone as brightly as the movie stars because it was encrusted with gems over metallic gold cloth. Jeweled rings on her bare toes completed the stunt.

State Track Honors Shared By 2 Schools

Sedalian's Record In 880 Yard Run Broken By Carr

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 31—(AP)—Kansas City's Southwest high and Springfield high each scored 25 points to share the 19th Missouri interscholastic indoor track and field championship tonight. It was the first time since the 1930 inaugural that either school shared in the banner.

Ends St. Louis Monopoly

The Springfield-Kansas City cobanner also brought to an end the monopoly St. Louis high schools have held on the championship since the first meet. University City had won it the past seven years.

University City came in third with 20½ points. Kansas City Central placed fourth with 16½.

Poholsky Bests Larry Jansen In 2-1 Duel

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 31— (AP) —Rookie Tom Poholsky took the measure of veteran Larry Jansen in a mound duel here this afternoon, pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-1 victory over the New York Giants.

After Jansen had held them hitless for the first three innings, the Cards put together four straight singles to score both of their runs in the fourth.

Both Poholsky and Jansen went the route, the first pitchers of either club to turn the trick this spring. Poholsky allowed only five hits, while the Cards collected eight off Jansen.

Gehrmann, Wilt Agree To Compete In Mile At Kansas Relays

LAWRENCE, Kas., March 31—(AP)—Don Gehrmann and Fred Wilt, currently the nation's two top milers, will renew their running feud in the 26th Kansas Relays here April 21.

Meet Director Bill Easton said Wilt, former Indiana ace now serving with the FBI in New York, had accepted in writing. Gehrmann, the erstwhile Wisconsin star, has given verbal assurance he will compete.

The pair will be matched in the Glenn Cunningham Mile, the Relay's feature. Gehrmann has copped this race twice in a row, tying the record in 1949 with a 4:10.1 performance last year, outran a 5-man field in 4:16.4. North Texas State's Blaine Rideout is co-holder of the meet mark.

If the ex-Badger wins this year, he will be the first to cop three in a row at the Relays.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

BASEBALL season is around the corner and time for me to have my annual guess on the St. Louis Cardinals and the Browns. It's weak, but I believe the Cards have better than an even chance to win the pennant, while the Browns—Oh well, we might say they should get a little higher than the cellar.

One thing is certain—out of the exhibition games Marty Marion, the new Cardinal pilot, has found he definitely has three good right-hand starters in Tom Poholsky, Red Munger and Clyde Boyer.

Poholsky went nine innings Saturday beating Larry Jansen of the Giants, two to one. The 24-year-old right-hander who came up from Rochester allowed five hits, but he proved to Marion he is good enough to stick. The two are the first hurlers to go the route since spring practice exhibition games started.

The Browns—well, there just isn't much to say other than they have a good program for the boys and girls to come out and see them play baseball. It is a Knothole Club which will admit boys and girls 9 to 16 years old.

We only hope the Browns do better when the season officially opens than they have been doing in spring training and exhibition games, if for nothing more than give their Knothole Club some real baseball entertainment.

STADIUM, what's become of the talk about the stadium which was on the lips of about every football fan in Sedalia some monthe ago. It seems the issue has about dropped from sight, but the plan is still a good one and should be revived some way or another.

If you recall, I recommended to the Sedalia Park Board some time ago to grade and build a football gridiron along the west end of the Park. The site has been looked over and those who have a reasonable idea of where the stdaium should be built agree the gridiron could be graded out for use this fall.

Temporary bleachers could be built to take care of football crowds until the stadium project can be carried out.

SEDALIA Country club golf players probably didn't realize it last year, but the local greens were reported as the best in the entire state. In fact during the Sedalia Pro-Amateur tournament, it was brought out publicly by one of the pros who had played all over the country that the local club had exceptionally well-kept greens—The speaker was Duke Gibson Midwest PGA president and participant in all major golf tournaments.

For your information Herb Bopp is the greens-keeper, and he has already started on putting new life into them for the 1951 season. Bopp claims they will be as good, if not better, than they were last year.

His work speaks for itself, but Herb is known throughout the state as one of the best greens-keepers in Missouri and is a match to many throughout the country.

An American Horse Favored To Capture Grand National

LONDON, March 31— (AP) —An American-owned horse appears almost certain to be the favorite for the Grand National Steeplechase next Saturday for the first time since 1929.

The public's choice is big wellbred Arctic Gold, the proud six-year-old possession of New York millionaire Jock Whitney.

Some 40 to 45 other horses will be in the field for the hazardous Aintree course of four miles, 656 yards over 30 of the most treacherous jumps ever built.

They will include two former winners— Freebooter, from 1950, and Russian Hero from 1949. Only four other possible runners—Rowland Roy, Lucky Purchase, Roimond and Revealed— ever have completed the course.

Easter Hero Picked in 1929

Twenty-two years ago it was another Whitney horse — Easter Hero—which the public liked for this crown jewel of the world's jumping races.

Easter Hero didn't win. He spread a plate, cut his foreleg and finished second to Gregalach, a 100 to 1 shot which was supposed to have been scratched but the owner's letter never arrived.

Easter Hero tried again in 1931. His jockey was knocked-off in a three-way collision five fences from home.

The British call him the best horse tht never won the national.

Arctic Gold is a little different proposition.

He's young as jumping horses go—no six-year-old has won the national since 1915—and he has never tackled the Aintree course. But he's beaten everything he's been asked to bat including last year's winner Freebooter.

Arctic Gold Takes Doncaster

A year ago Freebooter first showed Grand National class by winning the Great Yorkshire Steeplechase at Doncaster in February. This year Arctic Gold won the Great Yorkshire and Freebooter was third, ten lengths away.

Not only the public, but the experts have shown a fondness for the Whitney horse. They point out that despite his youth he is particularly well-matured and a born jumper. He waits until almost the last second and then goes at the fences as if they were mere hurdles.

Another good argument for Arctic Gold is his jockey, Tim Molony. This 31-year-old Irishman is the leading steeplechase jockey in Britain this season and is a firm believer in Arctic Gold's ability.

"I've never ridden anything so easy," he declared after his last race. "This horse is the best I've seen anywhere."

Chisox Continue Mastery Over Hapless Brownies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 31—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox parlayed six hits and two St. Louis Browns' errors into a six-run second inning today and went on to win, 7-5.

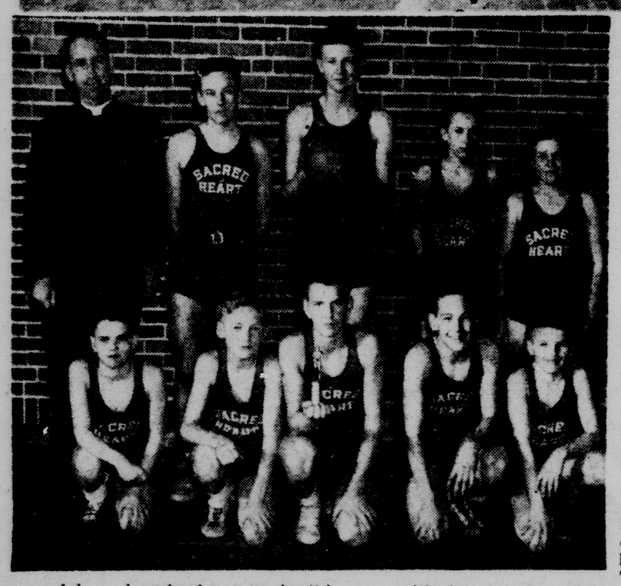

It was the eighth straight victory over the Browns this exhibition season. The Chicagoans now have won 14 of 19 pre-season showings.

Government Enters Fuss Over Grid TV

CHICAGO, March 31—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, under widespread pressure for unrestricted football television, next week will both explain its video moratorium to the Justice Department and tackle a proposed experimental grid television program

Next Monday, the NCAA's four-man steering committee of its television committee will confer with the Justice Department at Washington following the latter's request to study the situation "in light of the Sherman anti-trust law."

Board To Meet Friday

Next Friday and Saturday, the full nine-member television committee, headed by T. J. Hamilton, University of Pittsburg athletic director, will meet in Chicago in an effort to devise a working program from numerous proposals for controlled live football telecasts.

The four-man Washington delegation was the idea of the NCAA, itself, as a follow-up to the Justice Department's request for a transcript of the NCAA's video action in its annual meeting at Dallas, Tex., last January.

The Justice Department's interest was invoked by the prodding of an Oklahoma state legislator after failure of a measure to force live television of University of Oklahoma football games.

The NCAA's video policy has been under legislative pressure in a number of other states, including Ohio, Minnesota, Illinois, Washington, and Michigan, but thus far no television mandates have passed.

While the NCAA's full membership resolved at Dallas to declare a 1951 moratorium on live television, the door was left ajar by provision that members could cooperate with an experimental program next Fall.

This is a move to see which way the colleges may eventually have to jump on the question of football television which grows more and more a hot potato with each passing month.

Stewart Roars To Azalea Lead With Blazing 66

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 31—(AP)—Earl Stewart, Jr., a 29-year-old Texas redhead, burned up the Cape Fear Country Club course with a blazing 33-32—65 today to zoom into the third round lead of the $10,000 Azalea open golf tournament with a 206 total.

He was one stroke ahead of Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago veteran, whose 68 gave him 209 going into tomorrow's last round. In third place at 210, after 71 today, was Tommy Bolt, another Texan, who registereds from Durham, N. C. He was one stroke ahead of Art Doering, Richmond, Va., and Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., who both had 70 for 211.

In sixth place at 212, four strokes behind Stewart, were Marty Furgol, Long Beach, Calif., Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich., no relation to Marty, and Otto Greiner, Baltimore. Marty Furgol, who started the round tied for the lead at 139 with Bolt, had 73. Griener whizzed around in 66.

Stewart, who 10 years ago won the National Intercollegiate title while playing for Louisiana State University, missed by one stroke the competitive record for the 6,652-yard course.

Syracuse Makes Terrific Return To Dump Bradley

PEORIA, Ill., March 31—(AP)—Syracuse University, behind 18-0 at the start and trailing most of the game, fought back in the final minutes tonight for an astonishing 76-75 upset victory over host Bradley in the first national campus basketball tournament.

The Bradley Braves had been heavily favored to win their own invitational tournament, held this year for the first time. But the Orangemen from the east, overcoming the Braves' opening surge, battled to the short end of 64-35 halftime count and then hung on closely until the last three minutes.

Then sparked by Jack Kiley and substitute Swanson, they grabbed the lead and fought off further Braadley attacks.

Glenn Duggins hit two baskets in the last three minutes of play to night to push Utah to a 55-52 victory over Wyoming and third place in Bradley University's national campus basketball tournament.

Gehrmann Takes Wilt In Last Half-Mile To Win Niagara AAU

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 31—(AP)—Don Gehrmann burst past Fred Wilt in the last half tonight to win the invitation mile at the Niagara District AAU games in the relatively slow time of 4:09.1.

Wilt trailed at the finish by 10 yards. Stewart Ray, Gehrmann's New York Athletic Club teammate was third and Per Andresen of Alfred was fourth.

Gehrmann's win was his second straight over Wilt after dropping the previous three meetings.

Be Fleet paid $8.40, $4.70 and $3.80 running the mile and a sixteenth in 1:43 1/5. Bullreight, Jr., returned $6.80 and $3.40, Vino Fino $7.60.

Missouri Grabs Shuttle Victory From Michigan

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 31—(AP)—A University of Michigan quartet bettered the Michigan indoor record for the 240-yard shuttle hurdle relay tonight in the Purdue relays but was disqualified.

Michigan State's 1949 record of 30.1 seconds will stand because a Michigan runner got off his mark too fast.

Missouri's foursome was awarded the race at 30.2 seconds, compared with Michigan's 29.6. The quartet included Robert Foster, William Fessler, Byron Renner and Frank Bardot.

Two Purdue relays records were broken early in the 15-event program.

Don Laz of Illinois won the pole vault at 14 feet 2¼ inches, breaking his two year old meet record of 14 1⅝. He failed to equal his own American indoor record of 1' 3⅛ off a dirt runway.

Beloit, anchored by Carroll Schumacher, set a new relays record of 3:36.8 for the college sprint medley. Grinnell made the old mark of 3:37 last year in the sprint combination totaling one mile.

Crime Probe Film At Fox

The Kehauver crime investigation that has been top entertainment for the television audience the past few weeks has been filmed by 20th Century Fox and the news reel will be shown in Sedalia Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The 60 minute film, according to Joe Ruddick, manager of the Fox theater, who saw a preview of it in Kansas City last week, is packed with real life drama well worth seeing.

The all star cast which includes Costello, O'Dwyer, Virginia Hill, who adds the comedy, Senator Tobey, a natural born actor, and all the rest leaves people with the feeling that they want to combat the crime in their own backyards, said Mr. Ruddick. The film, which shows only the highlights of the investigation has drama, humor and disgust that is certain to hold the interest of all who see it.

Crowd Attends S-C Carnival

The large crowd that attended the Smith-Cotton high school carnival Friday night received a big disappointment at 9:00 o'clock when the electric power failed and threw the entire building and cafeteria into darkness. The power was not restored until an hour and 15 minutes later despite efforts of employees of the Missouri Public Service Company, who changed wiring circuits.

The main show, in the auditorium, had been on 45 minutes and the crowd was just beginning to get the carnival feeling, but the power failure dampened its spirts and its soon thinned out before the lights flickered on again.

The Sennor class won the ticket sales drive and its queen, Ruth Ann Bohon, was crowned queen of the Smith-Cotton carnival. Her attendants were Martha Graham, Beth Whitfield, Mary Peters and Peggy Garansson.

There were many good shows in this year's carnival and patrons all seemed satisfied with the performances. The "Boys' Follies" drew the most laughs and was entertaining. The "Cotton Cuties" was the outstanding musical besides the main show.

Figures are not yet available for the net profits but it was estimated that between $300 and $500 were lost during the power failure. The profits represent the money that goes for paying for the new $7,000 curtains and other school projects.

Two Bouts Become Ring Rough-Houses; Lady Chases Eckert

The wrestling matches Friday night had two events packed full of more action than has been seen in the local ring of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, in several weeks. The midgets team-tag event had the fans yelling themselves hoarse, while the Ray Eckert-Dennis Clary event had the fans standing in their seats screaming their heads off.

Without a doubt the showing of Dennis Clary, of Los Angeles, Calif., against Ray Eckert, California, Mo., was as one fan exclaimed, "out of this world." Clary and Eckert battled it out, after each won a fall, to a draw. Eckert displayed disgust when the bell sounded at the timekeeper's corner, ending the event, and Clary wasn't any too happy over it—he felt sure he would win.

In the opening of this event, the first fall period went for 18 minutes and 25 seconds before Clary got the abdominal stretch on Eckert forcing him to give up. The second fall period rolled thru eight minutes and 10 seconds before Eckert won it with his famous back-breaker and body smother. For 24 minutes the two giants battled all over the ring, each trying everything in the "book" to win, and when the gong rang ending the affair both were disgusted, but they both had a very tired look on their faces.

Fans Favor Clary

Fans favored Clary and when Eckert got a little too rough on Clary, a nice-looking blonde woman came running to the ringside and displayed her anger to the extent she pulled off her shoe which had a high heel and shook it at Eckert. Eckert was tossed out of the ring several times and at one point the woman started around the ring, and the California boy climbed back into the ring much faster than he desired.

The midgets had the action seldom seen in the ring. The little men darted hither-and-yon inside the ropes and kept the fans yelling. They tossed each other around like rubber balls, they did some eye-gouging, choking and about everything the giants do when they are in the ring. There wasn't a dull moment from the time they started until the event ended.

The team of Mighty Fritz and Pee Wee James defeated the team of Fuzzy Cupid and Sky Low Low. Fritz in the first fall used the Irish whip on Sky Low Low to win in 21 minutes and 23 seconds. The second fall went to Sky Low Low who used a body slam on Pee Wee James, then went scampering across the ring, bounced against the ropes and went bounding through the air to catch Pee Wee off guard. A body press ended the fall in 14 minutes and 20 seconds.

Third Fall Ends Quickly

It was a "quickie" in the third period when Fritz went flying into Fuzzy Cupid and did everything to him in wrestling, ending the affair in two minutes and 47 seconds with a body press.

Promoter Pearl Christy announced he would endeavor to have an anuouncement this week as to the next Sedalia event and is trying to get top notch wrestlers for the show. He hopes to sign Clary for another event.

Phog Guides West All-Stars To Cage Triumph

NEW YORK, March 31—(AP)—The West routed the East, 75 to 59, tonight in the sixth annual collegiate all-star basketball game for the benefit of the Herald-Tribune fresh air fund. It was the most decisive margin of victory in the six games and enabled the West to tie the series at three games apiece.

A Madison Square Garden crowd of 10,431 saw the West, coached by Phog Allen of Kansas, take a 24-12 lead in the first ten minutes of play and dominating the game the rest of the way.

The players from the Big Ten, Skyline Conference, Missouri Valley, Big Seven and Pacific Coast Conference, who composed the West team, simply had too much finesse and shooting ability for the East. At one stage, the East failed to score a field goal for nine minutes.

Oklahoma A & M Relays Captured By Sooners

STILLWATER, Okla., March 31—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma won five individual events and two relays to capture the fourth annual Aggie relay preview here today on the Oklahoma A. and M. campus.

Oklahoma massed 76 points. Oklahoma Aggies got 52 for second. Arkansas was third with 32, and North Texas State fourth with 25½.

Other scores in the university division were Emporia (Kas.) State 15; Oklahoma Baptist University 13; Wichita University 10½; Tulsa 3; Southwestern (Kas) 2.

Seven meet records were set in the university division and three bettered in the freshman-junior college events.

Clay Returns To Can Company

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay today left his post as special assistant to Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson. He is returning to the chairmanship of Continental Can Co., New York.

Clay, one of the two top aides to the mobilization chief, was a special target for the criticism of labor leaders in their walkout from the federal mobilization agencies.

Wilson said Clay came to Washington with the understanding he could return to private industry on completion of the first rush of work in organizing the Office of Defense Mobilization (ODM).

In a statement, Wilson thanked Clay for an "outstanding contribution" to the defense program. He said Clay had devoted himself "energetically, effectively and unselfishly" to the task, and will be called on to give special advice and aid as a consultant.

The resignation was expected to improve ODM's relationships with organized labor. AFL President William Green has accused Clay of having been in favor of compulsory labor service in World War II. Green said unionists suspected Clay still held such views.

An ODM spokesman, and later Wilson himself, denied that Clay or any other responsible ODM official contemplated a labor draft.

Cash As Boon To Tax Collectors

YONKERS, N. Y., March 31—(AP)—The $33,736 two schoolboys found in the attic of a ramshackle mansion here may prove a boon only to the tax collectors.

The cash, more than $900 of it in gold coins, was claimed by the Central National bank, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Franklin D. Bigelow, owner of the mansion, who died last August.

Hidden cash that has been found, largely in safe deposit boxes, exceeds $350,000, the bank said. A bank official said federal income tax agents contend all such hidden cash must be considered income in the last year of Mrs. Bigelow's life and be taxed accordingly.

Income tax officials confirmed this interpretation and said such taxes on the $350,000 for 1950 would amount to about $300,000. Inheritance taxes then would be levied on the remainder.

The bank, however, has clerks checking thousands of queer memoranda found in the mansion, trying to identify various bundles of cash as income from specific investments over a long period of years. There are five heirs.

Pins To Employes Of Pipelne Co.

The Panhandle Eastern Pipeline company entertained a number of employees and officials with a banquet at the President hotel in Kansas City March 28th.

Those attending from the Houstonia station plant were Charles Shepherd superintendent of the plant and Charley Carlin who received their 15 year pin as award of their continued service with the company; Lawrence Robertson and Orvil Frank who received their 10 year pin.

Many other from the different Panhandle Eastern pipeline station plants attended the banquet and received their awards.

Gospel Singers To Be At Burns Chapel

A group of gospel singers from Kansas City, "The Sons of Harmony" will present a program at Burns chapel this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

A program will be presented at 8:00 o'clock tonight by the Richards Travelers of Sedalia.

Rev. J. Y. Jackson is pastor of the church.

'Bob' Fewell To Ralphs Stores

"Second in command at the new Ralphs Weschester store, in Los Angeles, is 'Bob' Fewell, a native of Sedalia, Mo., who came to Los Angeles in 1935," states a recent issue of the Los Angeles Herald and Express. The article continues:

"Fewell graduated from Dorsey high school, where he participated in four sports—track, basketball, baseball and football. After three years in the South Pacific for Uncle Sam's Navy, he joined the Ralphs organization in 1946.

"Starting as a clerk at Seventh and Washington avenue store, he was moved to the Pico-Normandie establishment in 1948 as third man, then to the Lincoln store as head clerk in 1950.

"Westchester folks who are bowlers will meet him, when he's taking time off to play and not in the store, at his currently favorite sport—bowling. And he's a comparative newlywed, married last year."

Loyal Sewing Club Had Chicken Dinner

The Loyal Sewing club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Waggoner, 1101 West Tenth street, March 28th. A chicken and noodle dinner to which all contributed was served at noon. There were 26 present. The centerpiece of the table was a bouquet of jonquils in a crystal vase.

After the business session the group enjoyed a television program while doing various kinds of needlework.

Mrs. Waggoner wss assisted by Mrs. Johnny Johnson, Mrs. Forrest Hood and Mrs. Gano Stearns.

Big Increase In Overtime Parking Fines

The treasury of the City of Sedalia was swelled $297.00 from March 12 to police court time Saturday morning, March 31. The fines represented $1.00 cash bonds for each overtime parking ticket given out since the overtime parking drive started on March 12 on orders of Mayor Herb Studer.

The Retail Merchants committee of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, early in the month had started a crusade to stop overtime parking downtown by the owners, managers and employees of business houses with the thought in mind to give more parking space to Sedalia shoppers.

For the nineteen day period 297 tickets returned by the defendants voluntarily appearing, in some cases while a number did not appear until after they received a police summons through the mail.

Sixty such summons were mailed out last Monday and of this number thirty have returned the cards with the customary $1.00. Thirty of the recipients have failed to appear.

In Army-Navy Hospital

Pfc. James D. Johnson (CE), son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. "Don" Johnson, 1505 West Third street, has been admitted to the Army and Navy General hospital, Hot Springs National Park, Ark., to receive medical treatment the public information office announces.

Pfc. was inducted into the Army in September of 1950 and became ill in January. He was in the Army hospital at Ft. Leonard Wood until his transfer recently to Arkansas.

To Veterans Hospital

Jimmie Chapman, 2217 West Second street, has gone to Wadsworth, Kas., to enter the Veterans hospital.

Files Suit On Real Estate Deal

A suit on a real estate contract has been filed in circuit court by Mrs. Martha G. M. Shortridge against John B. Ghio of Hotel Bothwell in connection with a deal for the sale of the A. L. Shortridge home at 720 West Broadway. The plaintiff seeks judgment of $17,300 and ordering the defendant to accept a deed to the property.

The petition states the plaintiff and defendant went into contract over the sale and purchase of the property on March 19,1951 whereby the plaintiff was selling the property for $17,500 to the defendant. At that time the defendant deposited $200 to the plaintiff's agent, the Donohue Loan and Investment company, who petition avers, received and agreed to apply same as part of the purchase money.

The plaintiff's agent duly tendered to the defendant, according to the petition, such deed and abstract on the property to which the defendant refused to accept.

The plaintiff in her suit also seeks six percent per annum interest until said time should be paid.

A. L. Shortridge, Joplin, Mo., is representing the plaintiff, his mother, in the litigation.

Lot Sells For $4 In Partition Suit

A partition sale resulting from a divorce of Carrie Mae Gay against Frederick L. Gay, was held, Saturday afternoon at the front door of the court house, resulting in a lot located in "Lincoln town" on the north side of town being sold for $4.00.

The sale was conducted by Sheriff John Taylor, and she bought the lot.

Out of the four dollars Sheriff Taylor received $2.50 for making out the deed and his commission on the sale amounted to eight cents.

It is the smallest real estate sale made at the front door of the court house by a sheriff in many years, old timers report.

The woman was granted a divorce on February 28 from the defendant.

The trio was established in concert work about 14 years ago. More than 3,000 concerts have been played. It has successfully toured 21 states.

BOSTON —(AP)— Perhaps this could happen only in Boston. A customer entered one of Boston's oldest hardware stores where you can buy almost anything from tenter hooks to Sheffield cast steel, or cut nails in time-yellowed boxes. He was fascinated by a tray of unusual looking tools atop a display case.

"What,' he asked a young clerk, 'are these?"

"Some kind of leather working tools; we've had them a long time."

"How much are they?" inquired the visitor. The young clerk couldn't say and consulted an elderly clerk nearby.

"I dunno," replied the white-haired clerk. "We never had a price on them."

Sailors' Annapolis Turning Out Expert Technicians, As Navy Conquers Shortage With Mass Production

READY FOR TRAINING is this day's contingent of 300 sailors arriving at the Memphis Naval Air Station to begin training. They come either from the fleet or boot camp, and they represent some of the brightest boys in the Navy.

LEARNING BY DOING is key method at Memphis Air Station, Tenn. Aviation Machinist Mate 1st Class James E. Taylor, of Bartow, W. Va., learns how to adjust the length of arm pitch on helicopter roto blades by doing it.

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

MEMPHIS NAVAL AIR STATION, Tenn.—(NEA)—One of the major bottlenecks of the present expansion of the services in the shortage of mechanics and technicians. A tour of defense installations all over the U. S. reveals this situation.

Since the Korean war, the navy's air technical training command has launched a huge and unique program, which gives promise of easing that situation soon. The recently tripled expansion of this "sailors' Annapolis" appears to be one of the most successful build-ups in the entire armed forces.

Every day hundreds of the country's brightest boys arrive here, either from the fleet or boot camp, to be taught how to maintain and operate the increasingly complex tools of war. They stay for periods up to 44 weeks. They leave with highly refined skills, which will also guarantee them a good living when they again become civilians.

The 3000 acres of converted cotton land on which this base is located makes it the biggest naval air station in the world. The exact number of students aboard the "prairie Navy" is top secret. But in the last six months it has become one of the largest and most amazing vocational schools in the country. Its blue-jacketed student body has spilled over into a half-dozen similar bases around the country.

In the huge, crowded classrooms, everything from jet engine maintenance to scientific fire fighting is being taught with split-second efficiency. Civilian education experts from all over the U. S. stream through here to marvel at the operation.

About 30 per cent of all the students have had some college training. More than half are high school graduates. Practically all of the have at least two or three years of high school. Capt. Paul E. Emrick, planning officer of the command, claims that no school of its kind in history ever had such high caliber students.

The combination of intelligent, eager students and the most advanced methods of training is responsible for the obvious success of this program. Amazing training devices save time and money and greatly aid the students.

One instrument simulates an actual radar run over a target, giving about 40 students at once a chance to go through all the motions of a radar man on an actual mission. There are elaborate mock-ups and cut-aways of engines and other equipment which the students are learning to service. Motion pictures and other visual aids play a large part in the training.

* * *

Ten years ago only the country's smartest scientists understood radar and how to use it. Today they're turning out skilled radar operators and technicians in 44 weeks, without forcing them to memorize one complicated mathematical formula.

A staff of highly-trained educational phychologists runs constant tests on the students to determine whether or not they are grasping and absorbing the material. And the men are regularly checked to make sure they are learning the exact form of the skill which is needed in opearting units of the fleet.

It is Capt. Emrick's belief that it is getting more difficult for a man to become a fully-qualified airplane machanic than to become a pilot. He explains that the trend in aircraft design is to make flying simpler for the pilot.

For instance, he points out, the new airplanes now have complicated automatic power-control devices, which eliminate the need for a pilot to worry about or foot with manifold pressure. While this makes the job of the mechanic who must maintain the plane and keep it in flying order. Already it takes between 15 and 20 crewmen on the ground to keep one pilot flying in one airplane.

The new commander of the school, Rear Adm. William D Johnson, says:

"The naval air technical training system of education stresses the 'learn-by-doing' method which complete outmodes the old navy apprentice - type training. This formal method of instruction stressing practical work offers many advatnages not possible in the apprenticeship school so long the bulwark of navy training."

Also a part of this school are special colurses for officers. This part of the program has been expanded since Korea along with the training of enlisted men.

Morale among the students and officers on this base is extremely high. In spite of crowded conditions, there appears to be no shortages of colthing or services for the men. Near-by Memphis offers them excellent recreational facilities when they are off duty. There are unusually good relations between personnel connected with the training command and the citizens of Memphis.

The navy likes to think that that is one base where the service keeps its promise of teaching a man something that will be useful to him when he gets out.

Australia Gets More Cars

SYDNEY —(AP)— Motor car registrations in Australia in 1950 totaled 148,531. Australia has a population of just over 8,000,000 people.

The 1950 new registration figure was a record high. It exceeded the 1949 record by 62,414, and the previous record figure (1929) by 93,247.

Despite the high figures for 1950, the accumulation of orders increased and the waiting time for new vehicles lengthened by months.

Laxity of U. S. Attorneys Makes Senate Crime Probe Continuation Desirable

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — There are more reasons than meet the eye why the Kefauver crime probe should be indefinitely continued. One of them is the general lethargy of U. S. attorneys.

This lethargy is partly due to the system under which U. S. attorneys are appointed—a system which has developed without the blessings of the constitution and which the average layman does not realize exists.

Today no U. S. district attorney in any of the 48 states is appointed without the personal blessing of the leading Democratic senator or Democratic polititcal boss from that state. As a result the district attorney's office has become a matter of patronage—a part of the political machine which helps pave the way for re-election.

Naturally the senator who appoints, later influences. And the man who influences a district attorney with his power of prosecution or forgiveness, the power of jail or freedom, in some cases the power of life or death, is a powerful person himself.

That is why senators fight for the self-acquired right to name U. S. district attorneys. They are not given this right under the constitution, but they are given the right to confirm district attorneys; and they have used the power of confirmation in such a way as to hamstring the Justice department if it appoints a district attorney or a judge not acceptable to the interested senator.

FDR Tangled

Roosevelt had the courage to tangle with the Senate and appoint district attorneys on the basis of ability not politics. But not Truman. Truman has had courage in regard to some judges and has bucked the Senate on the appointment of a few judges—as in Iowa with Carroll Switzer; and as in Georgia with Neil Andrews—both opposed by Senators Gillette and Russell of these respective states.

In regard to district attorneys, however, Truman started setting the pattern the same week he became President by bouncing the U. S. attorney in Kansas City who had jailed Boss Pendergast, Maurice Milligan—an attorney whom he, as senator, had vigorously opposed, even held up his confirmation. And having blocked the confirmation of Milligan in Kansas City, he has since permitted senators virtually to name the U. S. attorneys in their states.

This means that local law enforcement as far as federal law is concerned is left largely up to the local political machine set up by the Democratic senators, governors or political bosses of each state. That is why many senators opposed creation of the Kefauver Crime committee in the first place. That is also why Kefauver's resolution was held up in the Senate for four months last winter and did not pass until after I personally urged Sen. Scott Lucas, then majority leader of the senate, that it would put him in a bad light if he did not give it the green light.

Lucas, I understand, has since regretted that decision and attributes his defeat to untimely and unfair disclosures of the Kefauver committee in Chicago. Personally, I was sorry about Lucas' defeat because I regarded him as an able and conscientious senator. However, both in war and in politics, casualties are inevitable in attaining major objectives.

Pearson Names Cases

There are many fine U. S. attorneys who do bang-up jobs. Many, however, take their cues from political leaders, also many become lethargic, forget that it is their job to crusade against crime. Here are a few examples:

In Maryland, last year, alert treasury agents had caught Earl Sheriff, former sheriff of Prince Georges county, right under the shadow of the capitol, taking protection money from the local gambling fraternity. The treasury asked for income-tax prosecution, the Justice department concurred and the case was sent to U. S. Attorney Bernard Flynn in Baltimore.

However, Flynn did not prosecute. He informed Washington that the case lacked sufficient evidence. In this instance, there was no indication that Flynn was taking a cue from either of the Maryland senators, though the local gamblers have been tied up with part of the local Maryland machine. But for reasons best known to himself Flynn sent the case back to the Justice department.

Later this column published the facts regarding Earl Sheriff, following which he confessed to taking protection money. He pled guilty and no trial was necessary.

A similar case occurred in Alabama, where Sam Ripps and Joe Mitchell had made a small fortune selling jewelry to army PX's but ducked paying income taxes on it. Hard-working treasury agents caught them, recommended prosecution, and the Justice department concurring, sent the case on to John Hill, the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, Ala.

However, Ripps and Mitchell hired Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney, and U. S. Attorney Hill eventually sent the case back to Washington marked "no prosecution." There it sat until this writer dug up the full facts and published them.

Whereupon the Justice department reopened the case, went over the head of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham to the U. S. attorney in Mobile. Ripps and Mitchell then went to jail.

Right Under D. A.'s Nose

Another case occurred closer to home—right under the Justice department's nose. It involved an important member of the Washington police force, Lt. Joseph Shimon, who was attached to the staff of the U. S. attorney for the District of Columbia, Morris Fay.

In September 1949 an official police report charged that Lieutenant Shimon had tapped the wires of Howard Hughes, head of Trans-World Airlines with the wire-tapping expenses paid by Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine. The police report also showed that Shimon had broken into a bedroom occupied by the Argentine ambassador. In neither case was Shimon acting as a policeman. He was merely making some extra money doing private detective work on the side.

Furthermore, Shimon had done this while working for U. S. Attorney Fay, right under Mr. Fay's nose.

The official police report on these transgressions of the law went both to the Justice department and to Mr. Fay in September, 1949. There the report proceeded to gather dust. The Justice department had indicated high moral indignation regarding wire-tapping in the Amerasia case, but appeared quite content to ignore infringement of the wire-tapping law in the case of the policeman friend of the U. S. attorney.

Finally when this column published the facts, U. S. Attorney Fay belatedly called a grand jury which proceeded to cross-examine Lieutenant Shimon. But he did not call the grand jury until just before the statute of limitations was about to expire and the unfinished case was left for a Senate committee to pursue further.

That is one reason why Senate committees are sometimes so necessary to hold a whip hand over the executive branch of the government. That is also why U. S. attorneys and local law-enforcement agents will be a lot more alert if the Senate Crime committee continues.

There Are Ways to Outwit 'Subversive' Mother-in-Laws

A young wife writes: "What can you do when your mother-in-law pretends to like you, but is always undermining you with your husband in sly ways?

"My husband has no idea of what she is doing, and yet she always manages to get her point across—that I've been extravagant in a certain instance, or that I'm scatter-brained, or that my job is a snap compared with his.

"She does this all so cleverly, I didn't even realize what she was doing for a long time. Now that I'm aware of what is going on, I'm still helpless. I don't want to have mother-in-law trouble and get my husband in the middle of it. And yet I know I can't just go on letting her undermine me. What do you suggest?"

If you're sure you aren't being too sensitive or looking for trouble or imagining undercurrents where none exist—then you should make certain you aren't making any such mistake—then you'll have to develop some kind of technique for protecting yourself.

Attack!

When your mother-in-law has implanted some idea critical of you in your husband's mind and he is scarcely aware of how it got there, scotch it by a direct, though good-natured attack.

Say something like: "I'm afraid your mother thinks I was extravagant in paying so much for a suit. We just don't think alike about clothes, I guess. I'd rather have one good suit and wear it three years. And she would rather pay less for a suit or dress and have more of them." That's the idea you might work on. Bring the criticism out into the open in a reasonable manner that is free of resentment, present your own side and then drop the subject. That is better than letting her get away with her strategy and better than telling your husband what she is up to.

Hang on to your sense of humor; work your tolerance overtime; and tell your mother-in-law as little of your business as you can.

More than 20 million dollars are spent annually in Missouri cleaning and dyeing establishments, according to the census bureau.

Results of Questionnaire Concerning Practice Of Social Dancing in the Public Schools

H. U. Hunt
(School Superintendent)

Letters were recently mailed to 22 colleges and universities in Missouri; to about 40 city school systems in the state, and to 50 of the largest school systems in the United States asking this question:

"Do you permit school dances in the public school buildings of your city? Please answer "yes" or "no."

Replies have been received from practically all of these requests. The replies are as follows:

From the Colleges of Our State —"YES"

The University of Missouri, Cape Girardeau college, Christian college, Cottey college, Culver Stockton college, Kemper Military Academy, Maryville college, Mexico Military Academy, Missouri Valley college, Rockhurst college, Kirksville college, Park college, Principia college, Rolla School of Mines, Stephens college, Warrensburg college, Wentworth Military Academy, William Woods college, Washington university, St. Louis university, Central college.

"NO" — William Jewell college, (Although student groups are permitted to hold dances off the campus.)

From Denver, Colo. — "As a matter of fact we wish all of our school dances could be held in school buildings. Our senior proms are so large that it is necessary for them to be held, at times, in rented hotel ball rooms."

From Indianapolis, Ind. —"High schools are encouraged to have week-end dances for the students."

From New Orleans, La. — "We consider this a very wholesome pastime for young people."

From San Francisco, Calif. — "Of course. We do our best to discourage their being held out of school buildings."

These social centers provide a program of social dancing for teenagers and young adults. The attendances at these social dances averages between thirty-five hundred and four thousand each Friday"

From Clinton, Mo. — "Square dancing is taking the town just now and our elementary schools are going in for it in a big way. The PTA groups and teachers are working with these groups."

"The 9th grade has had ten follow-through lessor periods on various Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8 p. m. during the mid-winter."

J. W. S.
(Parent and Taxpayer)

Much has been said against dancing in the public schools. As a reader of the column and as a parent, who has attended some of these dances, I am sure the people of Sedalia should be interested in knowing the true facts and the motives behind these dances.

The youth of today can no longer be provided adequate recreation or entertainment in our smaller, modern homes. It therefore becomes the responsibility of the church, school and the public to provide entertainment and recreation which will attract and hold the interest of our youth. Such a program must be well supervised and kept attrative to gain wide acceptance and participation by our youths.

I have attended several dances held at one of our local schools wherein the parents and their children spent the evening together dancing. As a parent, I enjoyed having my children go with me and seeing their dancing with other youths and having enjoyable recreation without indulging in harmful practices so prevalent in commercial dance halls. I also was able to observe my children's social conduct and was in a position to correct any objectionable habits before they became firmly rooted. Certainly a youth who has had careful training in social behavior is less likely to become a child delinquent than the youth who has been denied such training. Healthy youth have an abundance of excess energy that must be expended. They are going to find an outlet for this excess energy, and too often it is spent in harmful activity or in undesirable environment which often presents the youth with temptations and conditions with which he or she is unable to cope.—Resulting in social misbehavior.

Dances held in our schools provide an excellent means for children and parents to spend a few leisure hours socially. This contributes to better child and parent understanding.

The group sponsoring dances at Whittier school is committed to using all monies derived from the source to purchase playground equipment and to such other means as will provide for social and recreational training for our youths. This group plans to continue this program throughout the summer with the hope of developing a youth program to cultivate interest in sport, hobbies, civic government, and cultural activities.

I have observed the conduct of people attending these dances and found no evidence to substantiate the statements or accusations made recently in opposition to this program.

I am sure the proper development of our youth socially contributes to their academic spiritual well-being and deserves the support of all conscientious parents.

The Doctor Says—

Bad Nails May Reflect State of General Health

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

The finger nails and toe nails are taken pretty much for granted, but anyone who has temporarily lost a nail realizes how important these structures are. A finger seems practically useless without a nail. It is not surprising therefore that something wrong with one or more nails causes a good deal of concern—and people don't like bad looking nails, either.

An enormous number of things, can go wrong with the nails, not only because they can be affected by their own diseases but also they frequently reflect the state of the general health.

Mrs. M. C. writes, for example, about her grown son whose finger nails have a bluish color. But she gives a clue to the difficulty by adding that the young man's lips and skin also turn bluish when he gets cold. One would suspect, therefore, that it isn't the nails which are really involved but the blood in the tiny vessels lying underneath them. The cause would perhaps have to be sought in the circulation of blood.

On the other hand, Mrs. F. asks why her finger nails are so thin, ridged, and break so easily. To this there are two possible answers: she may have a disease of the nails themselves, or her general health may be such that the nails are not properly nourished at the roots and therefore do not grow out as well and as strong as they should.

Any serious disease, and indeed even an operation, may and usually does affect the growth of the nails. Most of us have had this experience and can remember a time when ridges grew out on the nails and did not disappear for several weeks when new healthy nails had a chance to replace the old ones.

Trace the Source

Poor nutrition, especially the lack of vitamins or certain minerals, may also be reflected in lessened strength or poor color of the nails and any chronic or wasting disease of the body can do the same.

Besides all this the nails can be damaged by a number of skin diseases such as psoriasis or ringworm. The result of all this is that a disorder of the nails is no simple affair for which one can recommend some local application or some pill or food to be added to the diet. In each case there is first the problem of identifying the source of the difficulty and then starting the proper treatment.

The "village smithy" hasn't been eliminated entirely in Missouri by the machine age, according to the Census Bureau. Annual receipts in Missouri blacksmith shops amount to more than one million dollars.

I

I HUNG up the phone with emphasis, slapping the receiver into its holder. I opened the telephone booth door and stepped outside. It had got very hot in there in the last 20 minutes. My watch said I had been there only that long, though it had seemed an hour. It was now 9:23. I could picture Criminal Court No. 7. I could even picture the scene in Judge Wanamaker's chambers. I shuddered. I wondered if this was to be Star Williams' last case.

The phone rang. I stepped back into the booth and did not close the door as I answered. It was Kitty Coyle. She sounded hysterical.

"Jim, you've got to do something! Quick! Judge Wanamaker's just sent out a message that if Star doesn't appear by 9:30 he'll let the case go to the jury without further argument!"

Wanamaker was within his rights. He had insisted that Star make his defense argument the previous afternoon, immediately after the state's opening argument, but Star had held out for an adjournment, though it was only 4 o'clock. Fuming, Wanamaker had granted an adjournment till 9 this morning. And now Star hadn't shown up.

"What can I do? Nobody's seen him after midnight last night. He was out at La Jolla Club watching the floor show there. He left in a taxi, and I haven't been able to trace the taxi. I even got Al Nanabarro out of bed, but he knows nothing more than that Star was at his club."

"Imagine Star wasting his time at a night club floor show at a time like this!" wailed Kitty.

She hung up. I left the booth again. It was in the rear of the Court Bar, a scant block from the courthouse. It was deserted save for myself and Pete Crummit, the solitary bartender. The usual barflies and hangers-on were doubtless crowding Criminal Court No 7. Star had always rated a big gallery. Only this time there was no Star.

• • •

IT was the first time that Star had ever failed to put in a courtroom appearance. Since I had started working for him a couple years before he had given me a few bad moments, but always he had been able to put on a show. But this time Andy Tanner, the D.A., wouldn't even have an opponent to contend with.

"Why don't you give up?" Pete Crummit asked. He was smugly mopping the bar with a rag that looked as if it might have been a door mat to a coal mine. I had never liked Pete. He had tended bar here since repeal and, as his trade was almost exclusively made up by the legal profession, he had picked up enough superficial legal knowledge to affect airs.

"Not that it would make any difference," Pete went on, "whether you found Star or not. This time he's licked, and he knows it. For my money, he's deliberately hiding out in that hotel."

"What hotel?" I screamed it. Pete went nonchalantly on with his bar mopping.

"Would you like to know?"

"What do you think I've been batting my brains out for since 8 this morning? Say! When I asked if you knew where Star was, all you gave me was the deadpan! What are you trying to give me, a rib?"

"Nix," said Pete, throwing down his rag. "I kept my trap shut at first because I wanted you to convince yourself that you'd never find Star without me. Convinced?"

I was convinced, all right. I selected a sawbuck from my wallet and tossed it on the bar. Pete pretended not to see it.

"It's worth a century," he vouchsafed. "Not a dime less."

I recovered and said calmly: "Aside from the fact that I'm not wearing that kind of money, you're all out of line!"

Pete betrayed no interest in the second ten spot that I placed beside the first.

"You'll pay me a century and like it! I don't know what kind of a corny alibi Star's got worked out, but if he don't show for this Bidault case, he's through. Nobody'd ever trust Star again. A lawyer that walks out on you for the pay-off plea! Phooey!"

• • •

HE was right. The situation was desperate. I emptied my pocket and threw the entire contents on the bar.

"There's about seventy bucks That's all I've got on me now!"

"Then I'll take a check for the balance," said Pete. I saw that he meant it. I always carry a spare check, and I scribbled a check for thirty. I was sure I'd thrown more than $70 on the bar, but this was no time to quibble.

"All right, Pete, where is he? And this had better be right!"

"Strand Hotel. He's with a dame named Madam Sareeta."

She held a little black automatic pistol. She pointed it at my middle and lifted delicately thin brows.

The Strand was a cheap theatrical hotel. A dingy affair, it housed a clientele of honky-tonk and burlesque entertainers.

There was a Madam Sareeta registered in 166.

I used the stairs though the hotel had something that looked as if it might be an elevator. I reached the first floor and ran down the corridor to No. 166. I tried the doorknob, shoved and flung open the door. A sleek brunette in a clinging black gown turned slowly and faced me. She held a little black automatic pistol. She pointed it at my middle and lifted delicately thin brows.

The brunette was of medium height, but that was the only thing medium about her. There was enough intelligence showing through the black eyes and the translucent white skin of her exquisitely molded face to match the perfection of her beauty.

• • •

STAR Williams in person stood on the other side of the room. He held a half-filled glass in which the ice tinkled. "I'm ashamed of you, Jim. I always taught you to knock when you entered a lady's room!"

I ignored Star's appalling gall. He was in better shape than I had expected to find him. He was neatly dressed though he wore the same suit he had worn the day before. He was cold sober despite the evidence of the highball glass in his hand.

"Who is this man?" asked Madam Sareeta, still pointing the pistol at my middle.

"I've told you about Jim Marshall." Star tossed off the rest of the contents of his glass. Madam Sareeta laid her little automatic pistol on a stand. "Jim, this is Sonya Sareeta, the famous lady magician." Star approached her affectionately, and though she was merely a medium-sized girl, she dwarfed him.

Gas Mask Saves Wedding

SANTA ANA, Calif.—(AP)—Barbara Moore, a lady Leatherneck at nearby El Toro Marine base, never dreamed she'd need a gas mask to get married. But one of the gadgets averted a postponement of her marriage to overseas-bound Pfc. Robert Daniels. The couple were to be wed two days before Daniels shoved off. Just before the ceremony, the bride-to-be discovered her barracks locked and sealed with her trousseau inside while a fumigating crew was filling the building with gas. In resourceful Marine tradition, Miss Moore borrowed a workman's gas mask, waded in and recovered her trousseau. The wedding was only slightly delayed.

Everything's Wrong With This Picture--

An April Fool's Day joker has been having a field day in the scene sketched above. It's packed wit hhoary practical jokes. How many can you identify? Anyone who has tried to strike a fireproof match or puffed on an exploding cigar should be able to spot at least a dozen. Advanced April Fool jokers may count as many as 18. But if you can tab all 22 that are depicted, you can call yourself a pro. Check your score against the answers on Page 5.

Here's Morgan . . . Radio's Joking Jester!

Donna Drake embraces Henry Morgan as Virginia Grey looks on, in this scene from "So This Is New York," a fun-filled comedy of capers now showing on the giant screen at the 50 Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre.

Jim Williams' Cowboys Rounded Up in New Book

By NEA Service

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A panorama of the color and humor of the American West, as portrayed by one of the world's best-known and best-loved cartoonists—J. R. Williams—is on display in the just-published book, "Cowboys Out Our Way" (Charles Shribner's Sons, $2).

Readers who have enjoyed Williams' "Out Our Way" cartoons on the comic page of The Sedalia Democrat will find many of their favorites reproduced in this new collection.

The book includes 192 of the cowboy drawings which have entertained millions of newspaper readers during the last 29 years. Jim Williams started drawing "Out Our Way" in 1922. His work now appears in more than 10000 daily and Sunday newspapers.

* * *

All of the famous Williams cowpunchers characters appear in this collection: Curly and Stiffy; Wes, the reformed tenderfoot; Big Ick; Sugar, the unpredictable cook; Soda, the pipe-smoking cowhand, and others. Nearly every page features the amazingly lifelike horses and cattle, drawn as only Jim Williams can draw them.

Says J. Frank Dobie, celebrated western authority and writer, and university professor, in the book's foreword: "The characters come out of two deeply seated realities in their creator: his own experience on the range and his dreams of a free life in the open. Over years of time Jim Williams has been living with these characters on their own spaces of mesa, mountain and canyon, with here and there a hole of alkalish water."

* * *

Dobie tells of the artist's background as a cowboy in the New Mexico and Arizona country. "He has cooked for cow outfits and put up with camp cooks in his own day. He has owned and operated a 45,000-acre ranch, doing his own part of the work. He was a cavalryman for three years in the days when cavalry meant horses."

Yet, says Dobie, "Jim Williams is a very diffident and humble man. He deprecates his own work with a modesty painful both to himself and his friends.

"Also, in his own words, he would rather have been a fairly successful cowman out in the bright sunlight of the days than the most successful cartoonist that ever lived.' If giving his own shirt to any cowpuncher who came along would make a cowman successful, I imagine Jim Williams might have become the king of cattle kings."

Williams has a library well stocked with western books, but he also reads the best of literature, including poetry, Dobie reveals. "He likes to remember people and things that have appealed to him. That is one of the marks of a generous nature. I imagine that his continuing cartoons on

J. R. WILLIAMS: He'd rather be a successful cowman.

"The Worry Wart" and "Why Mothers Get Gray often trail back to the long, long thoughts, as well as to the devilments of his own boyhood.

"The cartoons on the machine shop, dominated by 'The Bull of the Woods' go back to his work as a machinist. 'Born Thiry Years Too Soon' has carried milions of people back to times before the horseless carriage machined the world. He may spend a day searching for an idea that he can put in black and white in a fraction of an hour. To vast numbers of people he is a part of their daily bread."

"Cowboys Out Our Way" is the sixth book of "Out Our Way" cartoons to be published by Scribner's.

She investigated the building and succeeded in arresting the pair. Here, she holds them at gunpoint for the patrol wagon.

How To Pet A Porcupine

LOA, Utah—(AP)—Even porcupines can be friendly, buf you most know which way to rub 'em.

Perry L. Jackson, tourists' guide, found a porcupine asleep. He didn't know how to handle the little animal with the sharp quills. He tried to rout it with his hunting cap. He got a capful of quills.

His brother, J. Worthen Jackson, soothed the homely bark eater, stroked him and even picked him up.

Magic Deaths

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—(AP)—Fear of magic resulted in five deaths in a villiage in French Equatorial Africa, just across the Sudan border, according to reports from Yambio, in the Sudan's Bahr El Ghazal province.

A woman who was expecting a child was being attended by two other women. Her husband, entered the hut, thought the women were casting magic spells on his wife. He speared them both to death. A third woman on a visit to the hut was also speared and died two days later.

Meanwhile relatives of the slain woman killed the husband of the pregnant woman, who then died from complications.

Wild Potato Origin Is Mystery

VANCOUVER—(AP)—Indians in the British Columbia interior harvest a wild potato small and slender, and sometimes called lady fingers. The flesh is yellow and the flavor resembles the sweet potato.

W. A. Faulkner of Lytton says that apparently centuries ago natives of Chile and Peru journeyed northward in their canoes to what is now British Columbia. They brought their native foods and vegetables and introduced them to Indian tribes.

However, Dr. V. C. Brink of the University of British Columbia says he believes the potatoes were introduced about 1850-60 by Scandinavian trappers and miners.

Self-service laundries, a comparatively new enterprise, do more than one million dollars with of business annually in Missouri, according to the Census Bureau.

Although hundreds of deer live on the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland where U. S. military weapons are tested, few are ever killed by the flying explosives.

In the United States, eight countries and more than a dozen towns are named after Lafayette, the Frenchman who helped America fight the Revolution.

Use of Fluorinated Water Spreads as More Cities Battle Tooth Decay

HELP FOR HIM is fluorinated water, which reduces tooth decay in those who drink it frombirth up to 65 per cent. No help to adults, however.

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y—(NEA)—People around here won't taste it, but they're going to get a little something extra in their drinking water soon. It's fluorine, a chemical which reduces tooth decay.

The New Rochelle area is the latest in a long list of cities to switch to fluorine. Since the early 1940's, a fluorinated tidal wave has been sweeping the U. S. as news of the watery wonder spread.

Some U. S. localities have natural fluorine in the water. Dentists noted people in those spots didn't have the normal amount of tooth decay, then proved the same happy result could be obtained by artificially adding the chemical to local water supplies.

First, however, the idea was tested thoroughly. Controlled studies took place in Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Texas and Illinois. Scientists decided the fluorine did do the trick, but with certain reservations. Such as:

1. It only works if the fluorine is taken when your teeth are calcifying. That is when you are a child. In the main, only children through eight get any benefit, and the most benefit goes to youngsters born and raised on the stuff. It won't help adults.

2. It's not a cure-all. Even children who drink fluorinated water from birth will still have cavities, though not as many.

3. It won't help the rural population at all. Only people served by a public water supply system, at present, will benefit.

4. It has to be put in the water carefully. Too little will result in no benefit; too much can mottle the teeth.

5. Scientists point out that present data is still far from complete For one thing, the recommended amount of fluorine to be added may be fine for tested climates but prove wrong for others.

6. Tests are also incomplete as far as long range effect is concerned. None of the experimental cities have been using fluorinated water for more than seven or eight years. Perhaps results may change—for better or worse—over a longer stretch.

7. It costs money to work even a junior grade miracle like this. Estimates are that the cost per person is somewhere between five and 15 cents a year.

Despite the scientific hedging, however, it is clear that fluorinated water has proven beneficial, so far. Most authorities agree that if the chemical is properly supplied, dental decay can be reduced by from 50 to 65 per cent in those who drink it from birth.

To cite one example, a four-year test in Newburgh, N. Y, showed that the DMF rate—the number of decayed, missing and filled teeth in every 100 permanent teeth—dropped from 20.6 to 13.9 in the children tested. In that same time, the DMF rate in the non-fluorine control city, Kingston, N. Y., remained the same.

Another of fluorine's good points is that it is odorless and tasteless. And moderate underdosing or overdosing does no apparent harm. In Newburgh, a companion research project to the dental one dealt with how the chemical might affect other health factors.

The pediatricians concluded that the fluorine did no physical harm whatever. But, they added, final conclusions should be postponed until the youngsters had been flourine-drinkers for at least 10 years.

Depending on the size of the city involved and other factors, fluorine can be introduced into the water supply in many forms. Various compounds containing the fluoride ion—such as sodium fluoride, sodium silicofluoride, hydrofluosilicic acid, solium silicofluoride—an be used. And it can be added as a powder or in solution.

To guard against dangerous over-concentrated doses, most cities require a daily check by the local water department. Some localities, where chemicals are already being added to the water, can use existing equipment for adding fuorides.

The fluorinated water theory has been endorsed by many groups, including the U. S. Public Health Service, American Dental assocation and American Water Works association.

Trees Also Are Troubled With Many Diseases

NEW YORK — (AP) — If you think this civilization is hard on men, what do you think it is doing to trees?

Well, they're having troubles too — according to a man who claims to be the nation's oldest active tree climber.

"Tree diseases keep increasing all the time," said Harry Strevel, 67, shaking his head. "There are more than a hundred now."

For forty years Strevel, dean of some 1,300 Davey tree experts, has been shinnying up shade trees diagnosing arboreal ailments such as heart rot, shoestring fungus and other forms of blight.

"I could have retired two years ago, but I didn't want to quit," he said. "With trees I have always been happy. There's something about working with them that tugs a man. You get away from it for a while and see a dead stub on some tree you are passing and you want to walk right up and saw it off."

Strevel's affection for trees, however, isn't quite as strong as that shown by his teacher, the late John Davey, known as the father of tree surgery in this country. Davey used to tip his hat every time he met a white oak.

Most major tree surgery is done in the spring, when a tree's circulation is at its best.

"Trees fight harder than people do to stay alive," said Strevel, whose weathered tan and crewcut hair make him look like a gentle acorn. "It is very hard to discourage them."

But the nation's elm trees now are passing through a real test of courage. The Dutch elm blight, believed carried by a small beetle, has spread through New England and the Middle West since 1930. It is a major threat to what is probably America's favorite shade tree.

"It is a bark disease, something like the Chestnut blight that hit here in 1911 and wiped out all the native American Chestnut trees east of the Mississippi river," recalled Strevel. "It is fatal within two years . . . acts something like cancer in two years . . . no known cure for it. All we can do is try to keep the disease from spreading to other elm trees."

Many people still plant trees to memorialize their marriage, the birth of their children, or as monuments to a favorite cat or dog.

"I believe women get to love trees more than men," Strevel said. "A wife sees the tree in her yard all day long. It gets to mean more to her than it does to her husband. He usually sees it only in the morning and in the evening."

After climbing thousands of trees—and tumbling from a few—Strevel is convinced his occupation isn't particularly dangerous. But he once spent five months in a hospital after he fell on a stub. Another time his foot got caught in a loop of rope as a heavy dead limb was being lowered.

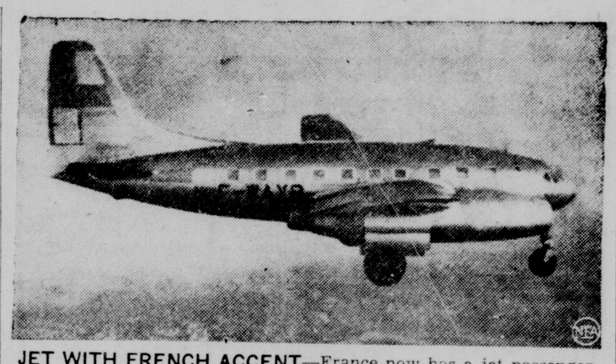

"I rode right up the trunk of that tree on the back of my neck," he said thoughtfully. "And I tell you I was doing some mighty fast thinking."

All tree surgeons have their pets.

"Tulips are hard to climb. They don't have any branches on them for 70 or 80 feet. Elms are bad that way, too—not enough handles. Maples are easy as a rule. They branch often. So do oaks. At my age I like the ones with handles on—so you don't have to shinny so much."

Only about 12 out of every 25 would-be surgeons make the grade. If they turn out to be "high-shy," nothing can be done with them.

"But, of course, all the failures may not be due to high-shyness," said Strevel sternly. "Some people are just plain lazy."

JET WITH FRENCH ACCENT—France now has a jet passenger plane, the "SO-30 Nene," pictured cruising over Villacourblay airfield on its first test flight. The transport can travel at more than 450 miles an hour.
